WILLKIE SAYS FOE IN FAVOR OF SOCIALISM

Claims Roosevelt Backs State Control of Some Form; Continues Tour.

By The Associated Press

ABOARD WILLKIE TRAIN ENROUTE TO MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 19—After declaring that President Roosevelt favored some form of state socialism for the United States, Wendell L. Willkie set forth today on a week-end campaign tour of Wisconsin and Minnesota.

Five short talks during the day will be followed by an evening address at Minneapolis where he will discuss farm problems. On Sunday the Republican presidential nominee will continue rear platform speeches preparatory to a Milwaukee appearance that night.

Last night he told a crowd which filled the state arsenal at Springfield, Ill., that the campaign issue was whether America should adopt a form of state socialism, state capitalism, or "centralized government dominating the complete economic life of the people."

"On that issue, by all of his acts, by all that he is doing, whether consciously or not," Willkie asserted, "the third term candidate is in favor of establishing such a system of government in the United States."

"I sometimes really think that he is not conscious that that is what he is doing. And I will accept his spasmodic remarks from time to time in favor of another system as sincere. But sincere or not, that is what his policies lead to."

Freedom Perilled

"I know of no way to maintain freedom for the individual under such a system," he asserted.

He declared that "peacefully, insidiously," that is the road down which the United States is going if it continues its course.

He added that he believes America can keep alive self-government, can keep a government diffused among the people without concentration in single hands, can keep a society which is solvent and does not become socialized, yet remains effective.

Prior to tonight's speech, Willkie late this afternoon at Hannibal, Mo., where the Mississippi flows past scenes haunted by legends of Tom Sawyer and Huckleberry Finn, declared it as a great shame Mark Twain did not live to make men laugh for centuries at the actions of the "third term candidate" in this campaign.

It began with an address in the shadow of Thomas Jefferson's statue on the steps of the Missouri state capital at Jefferson City this morning, it continued this afternoon through the memory-quickening homeland of Mark Twain along the Mississippi bearing paddle-wheel boats on lazy errands, and ended in Springfield tonight at the tomb of Abraham Lincoln.

A Bit of Whimsy

The Republican nominee gave a new and whimsical turn to his campaign argument at Hannibal, Mo., as the people of Mark Twain's birthplace gathered in a huge crowd around his train and the last bits of sunshine glinted on the great river.

"What fun Mark Twain would have made of military inspection trips," he said.

"He would have made it immortal. Men would be laughing for centuries instead of for a day. "But that's over now. The third term candidate has an-

WINTER STRIKES EAST, WEST IN HEAT WAVE

By The Associated Press

Winter swept the eastern seaboard today, equalling and breaking seasonal temperature records and bringing snow flurries, while the west coast experienced a heat wave.

Attendance at football games in Boston and New York last night was cut by the weather, and overnight the mercury fell to a low of 16 degrees on Mt. Washington in New Hampshire.

Snow fell in Maine, Vermont, New Hampshire, western Massachusetts and northern New Jersey.

Mother Shields Son from Bombs

While German planes droned and bombs fell, Mrs. Mary Couchman, 24, air raid warden in a Kentish village, shielded with her own body her small son and two playmates (feet showing) during an air raid, according to British sources. The children were playing in the street when the alarm sounded and she ran from her post, still holding a cigaret, to protect them, the British report. The picture was made by a London Daily Mirror photographer who happened to be on the scene. The photo was sent to New York via cable.

Final Plans Taking Shape For Ohio Husking Contest

Committee To Hold Last Meeting Tuesday Night for Wednesday and Thursday Events.

Details of the program for the two-day Ohio corn husking contest, to be held on the Alexander farm near Morral next Wednesday and Thursday, are taking shape rapidly and some 200 members of the general committee are expected to attend the last full session of officials next Tuesday night.

Those in charge will hold their get-together at the Huber Mfg. Co. sales rooms on North Main street at 8 p. m. "Pop" Farver's jamboree gang from Baltic, O., has been engaged to provide entertainment. Discussions, however, will follow a more serious vein as workers report on last minute progress of their efforts to line up everything for the big event.

The current issue of "The Ohio Farmer" magazine, sponsor of the state contest, carries detailed information about the contest, the site and Marion county. The cover of the publication is given over to a panoramic cornfield view and a sectional map of central Ohio pointing out the location of the husking site near Morral. An article, "The Battle of The Huskers" by Ray T. Kelsey, managing editor, elaborates on the program plans and gives an hour by hour schedule for the two-day affair.

31 Counties Hold Contests

At least 31 of Ohio's 88 counties, according to the articles, are holding recognized husking bees this season. Marion, Morrow, Delaware, Wyandot and Hardin comprises the group in this immediate section. Earliest contest of the season was held Oct. 10 in Putnam county, while 10 counties are to hold their trials today, three have scheduled contests Monday and four will have elimination trials Tuesday.

This year for the first time the state contests will be held on separate days. In previous seasons both contests were run off the same day and it was necessary for them to be scheduled at almost the same time. But under the new scheme fans will be able to watch their favorites in each division.

The contest in shock corn will be held Wednesday starting at noon and closing at 1:20 p. m. Plenty of time will be afforded to weigh up the loads and determine the winner by mid-afternoon. The standing corn trials will start at 11:40 a. m. Thursday, ending at 1 p. m. Weighing will be done during the speaking program and the champions will be presented at the close of the event.

Other activity scheduled includes plowing and corn picking demonstrations which will be going on both days. There is much interest in both, especially in plowing. There will be 68 bottoms in the field drawn by tractors of 12 different makes. The first field to be plowed is a 60-acre tract of rank soybeans which have been combined recently leaving a heavy cover of straw on the ground.

There will be pickers of seven different makes in the cornfield demonstrating their efficiency and advantages. Displays and exhibits by some 60 companies manufacturing farm equipment and supplies will supplement the exhibitions.

Slated to be one of the most spectacular parts of the card will be the line-up of 20 new tractors with their wagons for the parade each day to the contest fields. In each wagon will be a county champion husker, his referee and the two gleaners. Just before the contest starts, huskers will draw

Iron Lung Arrives, To Be Placed on Display Monday

The large iron lung purchased for Marion City hospital with money raised by public subscription arrived here last night and will be on display at the courthouse Monday through Wednesday.

The infant size lung is in production and will be delivered within two weeks, according to word received yesterday.

Public display of the large Drinker-Collins respirator, identical to the iron lung used by Fred B. Snite Jr., of Chicago, was decided on to give every one an opportunity to see the device, which cost approximately $1,350.

"After all, the people gave the money and they should see what they've bought," Miss Lillian McCarthy, originator of the iron lung fund, said this morning.

The respirator will be on display in front of the county health office in the courthouse basement during the day, and at night will be stored in the health office. Plans are to move it to City hospital Thursday. Boy Scouts will act as a guard several hours each day while the respirator is at the courthouse.

Fred B. Snite Sr. of Chicago, who has spent thousands of dollars since his son was stricken with infantile paralysis several years ago while touring in China, recently sent the following letter to Miss McCarthy:

"The Drinker Respirator manufactured by the Warren E. Collins, Inc., Boston, Mass., is the best respirator and easiest to operate."

AXIS DEMANDS GREECE BREAK WITH BRITAIN

Powers Reported Also Seeking Territorial Concessions; Capitals Deny Story.

By The Associated Press

Demands by Germany and Italy that Greece surrender territory, oust her pro-British government, sever trade relations with Britain, and line up in the Axis Balkan sphere were reported today by Greek diplomatic sources in Cairo.

Denials came swiftly from Berlin, Rome and Athens. Official Greek circles in Athens said the rumors were "unworthy of comment," and diplomatic sources in the Greek capital reported they found no evidence of increased tension in Axis-Greek relations.

The Greek sources in Cairo said their information came directly from Athens, and added that the Axis powers were demanding use of Greek air bases.

Corridor Demanded

Greece would be required to give Bulgaria a corridor to the Aegean sea, hand Italy a slice of territory bordering Albania, force the abdication of King George II and remove "Little John" Metaxas, premier-dictator.

Massed Fascist troops on the Albanian frontier have worried Greece into bolstering her small army close to its peak strength as anxiety both in Greece and in pro-British Turkey has grown apace with Germany's push east and the movement of Nazi fighting men and war equipment into Rumania.

Turkey has promised that her 2,000,000 soldiers would bar the Axis route toward the Suez canal from the north.

Relazioni Internazionali, often authoritative Fascist weekly, said today:

"Italian influence on the Balkans and Mediterranean countries * * * is destined to have future developments," the paper said. "This influence, in relation to war necessities, is henceforth not to be restrained."

Diplomatic circles in Rome regarded as "at least premature," reports from Cairo that the axis already has made extensive demands on Greece and Italian authorities said they knew nothing of such reported demands.

"The Italian people are making a war of natural aspirations," the Relazioni Internazionali asserted. "The Italian people also are following a policy of natural precautions."

The periodical said "any scruple is unjustified and any delay immoral" in attainment of the supreme objective, the "subjection of England."

London Takes It Easy

London had a lighter pounding than usual in the big city's 42nd consecutive overnight attack. Bad flying weather was said to have limited the Nazi air activity to "sporadic" attacks.

German sources declared, however, that bombers left for England during the night in "uninterrupted succession," striking heavy blows.

An "essential waterworks" in London was destroyed and bombs blasted British troop encampments in yesterday's air attacks, the German high command reported today, while at sea German submarines in recent days have sunk 31 ships totaling 173,650 tons.

At the same time informed sources said British destroyers which attempted to steam into the English channel from Dover yesterday were shelled by German long-range guns and driven back into the roadstead north of Dover.

The high command told of a repulse of British speedboats which attacked German supply ships, and said they were forced to flee behind a smoke screen.

Long-range artillery shelled British coastal batteries and harbor facilities at Dover, the communique said.

Objectives Listed

Armament plants, docks, factories and other objectives were devastated by bombs dropped on London, South England, Liverpool and Birmingham, the high command added.

For the first time since the air siege of Britain began, the German communique failed to men-

Salvation Army's Work Dependent On Success of Community Fund Drive

Broad Program of Welfare, Religious and Educational Work Carried On by Fund Agency.

In support of the annual Community Fund campaign, scheduled for Oct. 23-28, The Star is publishing a series of stories outlining the activities of the agencies which are depending on the Fund for help during the coming year. The following concerns the Salvation Army.

Once again the Salvation Army, which 365 days a year helps others, is calling on the people of Marion to help it.

It doesn't ask much in return for the vast amount of charitable, religious and youth building work it carries on. All the Salvation Army needs is your financial aid in the form of a contribution to the annual Community Fund campaign which will start Wednesday, Oct. 23, and continue through Oct. 28.

As one of the five agencies participating in the fund it will receive its full share of your gift.

With your gifts last year, the Army carried on its work in the efficient, economical and humanitarian way for which it is noted the world over. It literally transformed your dollars into better men, better women and better children—not only spiritually but physically.

A summary of the work accomplished in the year from Oct. 1, 1939 to Sept. 30, 1940 was announced this week by Major and Mrs. Joseph Heard and Lt. Margaret Seevers, who have been in command of the Marion branch since July 1, 1940. Before that Adjutant and Mrs. Rothwell Stickley, now at Springfield, O., were in charge.

The officers spent 1,024 hours visiting numerous families throughout the city—cheering many lying on sick beds, uplifting many who were discouraged and disheartened, creating a spirit of friendliness and good will among the people of Marion. Often a call had come to pray with some one at death's door.

Street Services

More familiar to the public are the street services conducted by the Army members and the band. Every Saturday night, except in very severe winter weather, they appear on the courthouse esplanade to play and sing familiar hymns and give out their message of Salvation.

During the last year almost 200 of these open air services were conducted.

In addition there were 253 indoor meetings with a total attendance of 12,084. Also the Army held 85 other indoor meetings such as socials, band practices, prayer meetings, and the women of the Army have their own meetings every Thursday afternoon, conducting 55 in the last year with an attendance of 840.

The army band, although made up mostly of young people, is aided by older players. The Army furnishes not only the instruments but the music in this part of its youth program.

Sunday school classes are held for all age groups, 728 in the last year with 8,880 attending. Every year for the social pleasure of the children the Army holds a Christmas party, Halloween party and picnic, and the different classes have their own events.

Young People's Services

There were 53 young people's services with 2,855 attending. The young people last summer staged a hayride and wiener roast as their leading social event.

Among the youth groups are: Corps Cadets, 52 Bible study meetings, 569 attending; Girl Guards, 51 meetings, 660 attending; Band, 52 practices, 650 attending; Young People's Songsters, 52 meetings, 650 attending; Music classes, 30 meetings, 300 attending.

The playground is open four months a year and this summer drew a total attendance of 12,000. Tennis, croquet, badminton, baseball, softball, horseshoes, volley ball and other supervised games are carried on. Handicraft classes are conducted eight months a year in the gym at the Citadel on West Center street, which also is used a large part of the year for other indoor games such as basketball, table tennis and volleyball. Last year 5,250 attended gym sessions and 2,520 attended handicraft classes.

Christmas Party

Last year's Christmas party was attended by more than 200, all receiving treats. Many needy families received food baskets at this time also.

The Army's program of relief covers many things. Fifty-six families were given food, 187 families shared more than 1,300 pieces of clothing, rent was paid in some instances, 25 families received 52 pieces of furniture and 20 families each were given a ton of coal.

The people without homes, the transients, found a friend in the Army, which helped 1,468 such persons. There were 1,632 lodgings for the night, 2,769 meals, 33 pairs of shoes given out and 122 pieces of clothing given to transients.

WALLACE GIVES KENTON SPEECH

Democratic Vice Presidential Nominee Lauds New Deal, Urges Third Term.

Special to The Star

KENTON, Oct. 19—A crowd of 2,500 men and women last night stood in the cold before an improvised stand on Robinson field to hear Henry A. Wallace of Iowa, former U. S. secretary of agriculture and now Democratic vice presidential candidate, laud the policies and accomplishments of the New Deal, and demand return to office for a third term "the man who understands better than anyone else the problems of the working man . . . the man who has brought us out of depression along the road to sound prosperity, President Franklin D. Roosevelt."

Mr. Wallace, who said he turned from the Republican party to the Democratic party in the belief that the G. O. P. was controlled by high financial interests, cited the civilian conservation corps and the national youth administration as laudable accomplishments of the present administration.

He told his listeners in effect that more government regulation is necessary: "Our America has been peopled by those who left Europe to escape regulation of one kind or another. Today both America and the world are growing up. This does not mean however that we have to reconcile ourselves to unlimited regimentation."

More Rules Needed

The speaker, whose grandparents, the late Rev. and Mrs. Henry Wallace, lived in Kenton for a number of years before moving to Iowa, said additional regulations are necessary "in order to be able to use science and invention to raise our standard of living".

"We (the present administra-

INVESTIGATION UNDER WAY AT CLEVELAND

CLEVELAND, Oct. 19—One of Ohio's first draft investigations started today following a report that 30 registration forms for one Cleveland precinct were missing.

Lieut. Com. C. D. Flan of the U. S. naval reserve, a Cuyahoga county draft supervisor, notified a district draft board chairman to call in all registrars of the precinct and "demand an explanation."

The board chairman was instructed to "have police drag them in" if registrars refused to report to him voluntarily."

Meanwhile police prosecutors sought the advice of federal authorities on what to do with a 22-year-old man whose refusal to register for the draft was reported to police by his mother.

"He didn't register," said the mother, "appearing at central police station with her son. "I told him to, but he became abusive—he tried to hit me with a chair."

Story about the procedure to be followed in draft physical examinations appears on Page 3.

Destinies of Splendor

A SERMONETTE

By Rabbi Nathan Stern of New York City.

Read at the recent New Year's observance of the Marion Congregation of Israel

DESTINY has always been a subject that roused human interest. What we think about destiny will determine what we are and how we face the crucial moments of experience. We become slaves of destiny or masters of destiny. Which shall we be? "As a man thinketh, so is he."

Whenever the human mind cannot or will not courageously face facts, whenever the human mind cannot and will not come into grips with a future because of seemingly overwhelming difficulties, destinies of hopelessness present themselves. We then have defeatism, a state of intellectual and moral surrender. Such a view of destinly stifles initiative and leaves the individual spineless against time of difficulty and rudderless in a sea of stormy experience. It is contrary to the inspiring teaching of religion.

The question whether man is a free agent or not has been the basis of many arguments into which great minds have thrown themselves. Nevertheless, the pronouncements of the Bible are clear and distinctive. Man, it proclaims, thou art free! Man, child of dust, thou mayest be the master of destiny.

IT is that message of freedom and its begotten courage which religion registers and continually reechoes. Our undying principle and faith are that "the star of human destinty is always rising and shines brightly." Destinies of splendor are open to us if we will but see them. Man, thou art free to strive! In these destinies of splendor, all of us may share and do our part.

How hopeful and how needed is this message today! How essential to possess it and be possessed by it! With it, attitudes may be changed; with it, are bravely met all confusion, economic depression, losses of possessions, moral lapses and losses of cheer. We become energized anew, as if by a miracle. We are free to rebuild and refashion what is lost.

Not to the craven does destiny come with splendor. Destinies of splendor come only to the fearless, to the alert and to the resolute. We can salvage ourselves; we can salvage western civilization when the hysteria of hate will have spent itself and when this cruelest of wars will have been brought to an end. Our day need not be over and is not over. There is no room for pessimism, no room for despair for humankind. There is room only for hope and for courage and for abounding cheer in the future of mankind. "The joy of the Lord shall be your strength."

AND even if life had been so hard for us that we see no hope; even if disillusionment has so warped our minds that we see no way out of the storm and the havoc—why infest youth with the bitterness of our despair and of our defeat? If the elders feel that they have had their day, youth is entitled to its day. The future belongs to youth if maturity has not vision enough to possess it or to share the future. The hope, the cheer, the dreams, the ideals, the ambition and the assurance of youth are great assets for progress and for humanity. The qualities of youth are great spiritual assets and real spiritual armaments which must not be denied the future.

Religion takes its stand on the side of the youthful. As a great educator once put it, "Whoever says, 'that is right and true and therefore at all hazards I follow it,' he is young and to be reckoned with. His star of destiny shines with splendor.

Loyalty to the past is a fine quality and asset if it means loyalty to the best the past has to offer. But better far than loyalty to the past is loyalty to the future. The best is yet to be. Yes, destinies of splendor are in the making if those with faith, in every church, in all America, yes in all the world hold true to their course, hold before themselves these destinies of splendor in a time of turmoil and strive on for their ideals of a better world, a chastened world, a courageous, forward looking, spiritual world. Destinies of splendor!

PRESBYTERIANS PLAN FOR SPECIAL SUNDAY EVENT

First and Forest Lawn Presbyterian churches Sunday will join in observing Sesquicentennial Sunday, at which time a special offering will be taken to assist Presbyterian colleges, Westminster foundations and Presbyterian theological seminaries in their work with young people.

The denomination has already raised $8,333,000 of the 10 million dollar sesquicentennial fund for the work, according to word received here.

The program started four years ago and will close in December.

Rev. Howard L. Olewiler of First church will preach at 10:45 a. m. on "A Day of Confusion." At Forest Lawn church Rev. J. A. Carriker, pastor, will preach at 10:30 a. m. on "Christian Education."

REVIVAL TO CONTINUE AT SALVATION ARMY CITADEL

The series of revival meetings at the Salvation Army citadel will continue next week, with Major Joseph Heard preaching each night. His sermon Sunday night will be on "A Hot Time Ahead."

This week Major Heard discussed, among other subjects, "The Calf That Cast Them Off," dealing with the futility of idols substituted for the true and living God, and "The Universal Remedy for the Universal Malady," based upon the words of the Prophet Isaiah. "All we like sheep have gone astray; we have turned every one to his own way; and the Lord hath laid on Him the iniquity of us all."

The ancient name for Dublin was Asheled. It was said to have been built in the year 140.

Veritzen Tells of His Meeting with Leslie and How the Latter's Revelations Seared His Soul

"I SUPPOSE he told you that you must meet him alone," Lillian commented.

"Curiously enough, he didn't," Philip Veritzen replied. "Instead, he wrote that as he was bringing one man with him, I could bring Otto with me. But he stipulated that when we met, Otto and his man should step back well out of earsoht, but not beyond watching distance."

Lillian made a clucking little sound of incredulity.

"That I should live to see the day when Jack Leslie even made a bluff at playing fair!" she said. "Did he carry out his promise?"

"Surprisingly, he did, to the letter," Philip Veritzen responded. "As you can imagine, I lost no time in going with Otto to the spot in the road he had designated. But prompt as we were, Leslie was there before us, with a burly looking ruffian in the car beside him."

"The Chief says Leslie's gang numbers some exceedingly dangerous criminals in its membership," Lillian's voice was crisp as she made the interpolation, and I guessed that beneath her poise she was tremendously excited by her old friend's revelation.

A Smooth Article

"I can well imagine that," Mr. Veritzen replied. "His bodyguard certainly looked the part. But he trailed behind Leslie docilely enough when the car stopped and Jack came up to us.

"'There's no use your getting out of the car, Mr. Veritzen,' he said, and I give you my word there was the utmost deference in his manner."

"There would be," Lillian commented. "He's as smooth an article as ever came out from an ironer."

"He told me," Philip Veritzen resumed, "that he would get into the car with me while we had our talk, and that Otto and his man were to walk off together until he should blow a whistle for them to stop.

"I confess I was a bit uneasy when I saw the men walk off together. I knew that no doubt Leslie's man was heavily armed—indeed I could see the bulges in his clothing. But I also knew Otto was armed, and I have had experience of his marksmanship and his ability in a tough scrap.

"I had no grounds for my qualms, however, as far as my bodily welfare was concerned. Jack Leslie kept his word to the letter. But what he did to my soul and my pride in those few moments of our interview, was a monstrous thing. I never can forget it, never!"

His voice faltered and his mouth twisted bitterly.

"You must forget it," Lillian said imperatively. "Get it out of your system by telling us all about it, and then—keep it away from your mind."

"You forget," he said. "I must tell Olga."

"Let's lay that on the table, too," Lillian said briskly, and I shot a quick, inquiring glance at her. But she did not look at me, she was regarding Philip Veritzen too attentively to attend to anything else.

Leslie Talks

His eyes met hers with a question in them, which a moment later, found voice.

"You mean?—"

"I mean nothing now," Lillian replied. "First, we want to know everything that devil said to you. Then we can know what to advise you, if—indeed, you need advice."

"More than anyone ever needed it before," he said extravagantly, and then was silent for a long second, while Lillian and I, also in silence, "champed at the b of our impatience.

"He did not take long to t me his errand," he began "As soon as Otto and the man Leslie had brought with were safely beyond earsho said coolly:

"This will not take long simply going to tell you of a ple of your activities during year of which you profess no memories. You won't be to claim loss of memory longer, for I'm going to it for you!"

THE ROAD TO SHANI LUN

by Rita Mahler Manson

YESTERDAY: Once more beautiful Lynn Britton has escaped from Temu Darin, who is taking her to marry the Mongolian Prince of Shani Lun. But once more Temu has captured her, and now he is holding her prisoner in an odd apartment over a Chinese river, while a revolution is in progress outside.

CHAPTER TWENTY-ONE
Battle Of Wills

"BUT I do keep you safe, Tara Lynn," Temu repeated wiping the scratch on his chin with a fresh handkerchief.

Lynn pushed back the hair from her forehead. She felt as disheveled as if she'd been in a football scrimmage—and something else. She felt a kind of despair that he could come out of the fracas calm and cool and apparently unmoved when she had been so acutely aware of him—his touch, the pressure of his arms.

"Safe even from yourself," she murmured.

His eyes flashed at that and she caught a glimpse of passion quickly repressed. "I think," he answered, a little smile about his lips, "that I shall have to invent a machine for shaking you when you need it."

She laughed a little at his indirect tribute to herself, sat back, and asked maliciously, "Did your men make a pretty good haul on the boat now that you have gone in for piracy?"

"Except for you," he remarked, lighting a cigarette after she had refused one, "all valuables will be returned." He sat down. "I have made many people happy. The tour manager has secured his wish and his clients their excitement without any consequences. The Wallaces have been given an invitation to visit Shani Lun next spring. And a troupe of Chinese actors have received the best pay of their lives for putting on a play most unusual for the Chinese theatre."

"So, that explains the dwarf and his friends and the sampan you signalled! How simple and trusting I am, Temu! I never expect intrigue until it is too late. I think all around a subject and then miss the point. I seem to have no defenses against cupidity."

He grinned. "And, yet, when I tell you the truth about your destiny and disbelieve me. Oh, well," he rose, "you make life dramatic. You enlarge every experience with imagination. Living with you would never be dull." He came and sat down on the arm of her chair. She rested her head on his hand on the back of the chair and smiled up at him.

"I'm at least grateful for these kind words."

"What more do you want?" he demanded. "Another conquest? A chance to say 'yes' and 'no' to yet one more man?"

"Perhaps," she agreed. "Are you afraid?"

He bent towards her. "No, you don't, Tara Lynn. There is no alternative to you. I can't tell you these things; I must take you to Delun and prove them. You belong to the Prince, and," he added in a deeper, slower tone, "to him alone. Sherdock says that in heaven you two are one spirit."

Temptation

She drew away a little frightened, dismayed before his persistence and his firm intention. He could sit here beside her, an arm under her head and say these things. Then she noticed a faint trembling in the hand that rested on his knee. She raised her head and steeled herself to express the thought that was in her mind.

"Temu, when you talk to me about the Prince, I have the most wicked temptations."

He gazed at her for a moment, color mounting his cheeks to his temples. Then he looked down at her fingers picking nervously at her handkerchief.

"Naturally," he said slowly, "a goddess is subject to stronger temptations than an ordinary woman. You happen to be in a queer state of mind, Tara Lynn. I am not deceived. You are trying to prove your strength and my weakness. Otherwise, you are incredibly innocent. And I remain incorruptible." He rose.

"Keep on like this, Temu," she said gently, her eyes following him, "if you wish me to fall in love with you instead of your Prince."

He smiled slightly. "You don't know what it is to fall in love. You've never had the experience."

She agreed. "But I was never exposed to your technique before. I think I should like to learn."

In the bedroom, Lynn found a small bag containing clothing for her that must have been brought from the caravan camp for this occasion. She took out what she wanted, and dressing, put on a soft blue-gay frock that fitted her affectionately and flatteringly, and accentuated the blue of her eyes.

When she returned Temu had changed to his army uniform. His glance slid over her with quick approval. He was on his way out.

"Eat some breakfast," he said, "and take a nap. I'll try to get back by noon." He let himself out by the living room door and locked it behind him. Lynn drank a cup of tea and prowled about. Chan watched her try the kitchen door. They smiled at each other. She knew it was useless to ask his aid.

When she had lain down on the divan sleep came easily. Temu's return awakened her. The electric lights were on again and the table laid for lunch. Temu washed his hands and they sat down at once.

"I hear rumors of a temporary truce between government forces and the rebels," he said. "At least the lights are on again and the artillery fire has ceased. Your friends from America are going back to Nanking within an hour, to be allowed to wing their way. And all the respectable white women in Lenlou are going with them."

"How about me?" she demanded.

He pulled a long face. "Your friends greatly fear, as I do, that the river pirates have carried you off."

"Me!" she scoffed. "Peggy's the girl for ransom. In comparison with her, I have nothing."

"Who says so?" he grinned. "Your welfare is a pledge for a large sum from the Prince of Shani Lun at any time. I explained to your friends that under the circumstances I am returning to Delun at once to help the Prince in negotiations for the safe return of the girl."

Lynn laughed in spite of herself. "But you'll come a cropper some day," she promised. "Who's Amy?"

He looked blank for a moment. Then he saw the open book of verse. "Amy's an American art student I knew in Paris. Swell girl." He observed Lynn thoughtfully. "Looked a little like you, in fact."

"Did the Prince ever see her picture?"

"Now, what are you driving at? Oh, I understand. No Tara Lynn, he would never have taken her for you."

His high spirits affected her unhappily, she stared at him somberly.

"I think we shall be able to hop off tonight," he said.

Mystery Explained

"Hop off?" she cried. "In a plane?"

"I hope so. That's the way I came last night. Had a devil of a time with those scouts in the air looking for me."

"So yours was the mysterious plane from the stratosphere! That Chinese aviator I was dancing with last night mentioned your luck in the air."

He bowed. "I hope it continues. I was compelled to land on the river after dark and twisted things up a bit. The ship's under cover nearby."

"How did you get hold of an airplane?" she asked curiously.

"Wirelessed it sent from Delun to Watch Tower Wells. There is trouble brewing in the desert. Contraband arms are coming in from the north by camel train. I've made some reports to the Chinese government and I understand a price has been set on my head by the leaders of the opposition. I've sent my men and camels on posthaste except for a small detachment with Sherdock and Gersing at the Wells."

"So the representative of the Prince of Shani Lun has enemies. Now if I could get in touch with them—"

He laughed and rose from the table. "I must be going. I'm living officially on one of the junks on the river." He gave a smart salute. "See you later, Beautiful." The door closed.

"What a fool I was not to expose you when I had the chance!" she called after him.

She heard the key turn in the lock as his voice came through the panel.

"Blessed fool, my darling," and his footsteps receded through the storage room.

Chan had cleared the table and Lynn could hear him working about the rear of the apartment. Presently, as all became quiet, she went into the kitchen. The servant had disappeared. She looked about for a way of exit and saw above the locked door a ventilator. It was larger than those in the other room and when she turned off the artificial lights, a glow came through from the outside. Copper screening covered the opening. Lynn drew forward a small table to stand on and took a fierce-looking knife from a drawer.

The screening was not difficult to remove. She looked out into an empty shed, beyond which, through an open door, she could see the platform of the quay and boats passing up and down the river. A sentry passed back and forth before the open door.

As she turned back to the room her roving eyes saw a ring of keys hanging behind the oil stove.

She was down in a instant, and securing them, she pulled the table away. Lynn chose two likely keys. The second one did the trick.

She stepped out, her heart beating wildly, and made her way to the outer door. The sentry, she judged, paced a distance of a hundred yards back and forth. She stepped inside against the wall until he had passed and then moved boldly into the opening.

Up the river a quarter of a mile lay a junk at anchor flying the flag of Shani Lun. Temu's "official" headquarters, Lynn surmised. Overhead, three large cabin planes were circling back from their take-off at the airport downstream beyond the farthest city wall.

Suddenly, gunfire broke out in that direction and a great volume of smoke arose as if the hangers and gasoline dumps had been set on fire.

EPISCOPALIANS NEAR END OF CONVENTION

Debate on Controversial Issues, Including Divorce.

By The Associated Press

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 19—The 53rd triennial Protestant Episcopal convention, concluding its work today—five days ahead of schedule—carried its debates on controversial, precedent-shattering proposals right into final sessions.

Items awaiting final action by the house of deputies include a proposal to liberalize the church's stringent marriage and divorce laws; the three-year budget, including for the first time a proposal to require resignations of bishops on becoming 72 years old, and one to require young clerics to refrain from marriage for two years after being ordained.

All have passed the house of bishops.

Marriage and divorce presented the most important domestic issue after prolonged discussion the house of bishops approved, 69 to 26, a new canon which would permit divorced persons who remarry to receive the church's blessing.

This would not be conferred, however, until one year after the remarrige and then only upon recommendation of ecclesiastical authorities. The measure still forbids Episcopal ministers to remarry divorced persons, requiring such remarriages to be performed by civil authorities or other clerics.

Under present canon, which some bishops described as "merciless", only the remarriage of an innocent party in a divorce for adultery is sanctioned.

Young Man With $20,000,000 Waits For Summons to the Throne of France

South of Gibraltar, far from France in miles yet near in flying hours, a trim, moustached aristocrat busies himself at the task of "awaiting events."

He dictates to two secretaries. He sends many telegrams. He interviews countless visitors.

Over the activity hangs an air of expectancy, its pulse rising or falling with arrival of each message from the north.

The Count of Paris, a young man who inherited a fortune estimated at $20,000,000, is awaiting word which would make him King of France.

Scion of the House of Orleans, the 32-year-old nobleman believes restoration of the throne may be "just around the corner."

So from a retreat at Larache, in Spanish Morocco, he is pulling strings, keeping in close touch with Royalist sympathizers who are insisting, perhaps to Adolf Hitler himself, that solution of the problems surrounding the new French government lies in making the count a sovereign Henry VI.

On Leave From Legion

The pretender normally would be taking things easy since he is on leave from a period of incognito soldiering in the French foreign legion.

But the business in hand leaves few idle moments.

Political matters come first, of course, closely allied with his authorship of Royalist newspaper articles.

A consuming interest in aviation also takes its toll in hours.

And not overlooked is the necessity of making his athletic figure, delicate features, little smear of a moustache, blue eyes, and calm, thoughtful manner as familiar as possible.

Man Of Ideas

As pretender to a non-existent throne, the Count of Paris likes to think of himself as a man of ideas; and as democratic.

He wants a monarchy "to preserve French liberties," asserting through close friends that he neither created the war nor signed the Armistice and would not have signed the peace treaty.

"Poor France, she has suffered a terrible defeat," Royalists further quote him.

The Duke of Guise, the late father of the count, issued several manifestoes calling for monarchical rule.

Recently some observers have speculated the Petain government might be only a temporary one aimed at restoring a monarchy.

Countess Returns

Adding to this belief was the recent return from Brazil of the Countess of Paris, the former Princess Isabelle, whose trip was linked in France to a report her husband would receive an offer of a puppet kingdom from Chancellor Hitler.

The would-be monarch's ideas on government have not been expounded recently "for the record" but a book published under his name in 1930 recommended a decentralized France, effected by division into the provinces he believes are its "natural regions."

Over everything would be the king, "arbitrating and pacifying—an umpire between capital and labor and other factions."

He's A Traveler

Working toward such an ideal have been Royalist groups in every French province, many insistent upon being called by centuries-old titles rather than "monsieur" or "madame."

The count's fortune, handed down the long line of forbears who ruled France 1,000 years, has financed the campaign.

Owning estates in Belgium and Italy as well at a Larache, the count has traveled much. His sporty monoplane and shiny red Bugatti (Italian) automobile are familiar in most European capitals that know him as one of the continent's best-dressed men despite a preference for aviation regalia.

Barred From France

As head of the Bourbon-Orleans line he is barred from France under an old law but sought, prior to the war, to enter his country's armed forces.

Turned down by President Albert Lebrun, he applied to the foreign legion under an assumed name and was assigned to its air corps. When his father died last August, he was given leave.

Royalist activity was directed many years from a wooded estate, Manoir d'Anjou, just outside Brussels, where the Duke of Guise took up residence in 1926 on the death of his cousin, Duke Phillippe of Orleans, pretender before him.

Here the count joined in directing the campaign, seated at a great glass-topped desk on which rested a crystal bowl containing a handful of French soil.

When the duke died the estate, with the pretender's role, passed to his son.

Elaborate Wedding

Most active step taken by the count came in 1938 when he flew to country estate near Paris and, to a country estate near Paris and, serving champagne to reporters assembled in secret, read a manifesto urging restoration of the king.

The incident, marking the first time he had set foot on the land his ancestors ruled, drew much public attention as had his wedding, eight year's earlier, to slim, sophisticated Princess Isabelle, granddaughter of the last emperor of Brazil.

Like her husband, the princess is of French royal descent but, through a quirk of the law, is permitted to enter France while he is not.

Parents of six children, they were married at Palmero, Sicily, in an elaborate ceremony attended by a thousand guests representing all rural houses of Europe.

The Count and Countess of Paris

Candidates and Speakers Active As Campaign Nears Its Final Stages

By The Associated Press

Wendell L. Willkie took his presidential campaign into Wisconsin and Minnesota today; President Roosevelt, plans made for a five-speech pre-election drive, began a week-end visit at his Hyde Park, N. Y., home, and fresh controversy raged over the third term issue.

Thus, broadly, was the picture of the nation's major political contest as the third week before election drew to a close.

Hiram Johnson, veteran Republican senator from California, who supported Mr. Roosevelt in 1932, entered the third term argument last night with a declaration that it presented "in greater degree than a flaming war*a crisis purely American." He announced support for his party's ticket of Willkie and Senator Charles L. McNary of Oregon, the vice-presidential nominee.

Downie Joins

Johnson spoke over the radio in Washington, and he was followed on the air by his Democratic colleague, Sheridan Downey, who, speaking from Los Angeles, urged Mr. Roosevelt's re-election because of his "liberalism."

Johnson said that "upon all matters I do not agree with Messrs Willkie and McNary, but they are eternally right upon the great issue, and the all-important one, of a third term."

Downey said there evidently was "no anti-third term sentiment here in California," because, he said, Johnson had been elected to the senate for four terms and "it is apparent his people will soon honor him for a fifth time."

Johnson, 74, has served in the senate since 1917 and has obtained the nominations for another term of the Democratic and progressive parties, as well as the Republican.

Starts At Philadelphia

The convention hall in Philadelphia where Willkie was nominated, will be the scene of the first of Mr. Roosevelt's five speeches. It will be delivered next Wednesday.

Mr. Roosevelt's running mate, Henry A. Wallace, continued his speaking tour.

Mayor La Guardia of New York voiced a similar opinion in Boston last night where he termed Willkie a "promoter" and a "Ballyhoo artist" and added:

"Willkie is a business man in the sense that Herbert Hoover and others were business men—which means giving a few in American business special privilege and special favors."

Former Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York, who "took a walk" from the Democratic party in 1936, will make four speeches for Willkie, it was announced yesterday.

GRANGE SHOWER SET

Mr. and Mrs. Elwyn Williams who were married recently will be given a miscellaneous shower at a meeting of Grand Prairie grange Tuesday night at 8 at the school.

A meeting of Montgomery grange will be held Tuesday night at the township hall at DeCliff.

Voters of Marion County:

I recommend William Risch of Big Island Township for your vote for County Commissioner. I have known Mr. Risch for the past 24 years and find him to be—an honest man—a good farmer—and a good citizen. He is a taxpayer and has been a good business man as he has managed his own farm very successfully for the past 25 years. As Trustee of Big Island Township, he administered the job very capably. At that time I did some surveying for the road and found him to be always on the job—taking right ahold of the work. I will say he is well qualified for the office.

Dear Madam—

IN REPLY to your recent letter to the editor, in which you say it would be difficult to choose between the presidential candidates if Mr. Roosevelt hadn't had the experience of two terms already, an observation seems appropriate.

If Mr. Roosevelt is reelected he will be more experienced in 1944 than he is in 1940. In 1948 he will be still more experienced. The experience argument is tricky in a country which always has held that the best way to keep control of politicians is to keep changing them around lest they develop illusions of indispensability.

Your other statement, that you hope Wendell Willkie will run again in 1944 so you can vote for him because you think he's a great man, seems to be a denial of your reason for voting for Mr. Roosevelt this year. You assume that the same argument used by Mr. Roosevelt as a third term candidate can't be used again. Lady, if there's anything to your argument about experience what right would Mr. Willkie have in 1944 to run against an opponent with 12 years of White House experience? What right would anyone have?

Fortunately, experience isn't the only thing that pays off in politics. If it were, every public jobholder would be sitting pretty for life.

Shifting Scenery

THERE is mounting evidence that the scene is being set for momentous action in the near east. Some of the signs are:

Nazi troop movements into Rumania without knowledge of the Russian government—according to the Russian government.

Reports of Russo-Turkish talks in Moscow.

Nazi shipments of submarine parts to naval bases from which submarines could operate in the Black sea—with knowledge of the Russian government, according to the German government.

Intensification of naval activity on the part of Italy, whose role in the war is to keep Great Britain so busy in the Mediterranean it won't have time to undertake any new adventures, such as taking a hand in naval action around the Dardanelles.

Russia's recent admission in Red Star, official army organ, that Germany's air offensive against Great Britain has failed, which may be the prelude to telling Russian soldiers Germany will return to its original intention of extending its empire eastward, up to and around the shores of the Black sea—the sea which Russia thinks of as its "lake."

The Nazi drive against the British Isles has stalled, but that is only one of many fronts on which the axis powers are prepared to make trouble. Hitler's original intentions was to extend the German empire eastward. His reversion to that intention probably is going to be the major development in the war this winter.

The Same Mr. Hurja

WHEN Emil Hurja was tickling the political sensibilities of Democrats with rosy predictions of success at the polls a few years ago, he was flies in the Republican soup. What Republicans disliked about him most was the thing Democrats admired—he was always saying the Democrats were going to win, and he was always right. His calculations as executive director of the Democratic national committee were available to James A. Farley. It was Mr. Farley who saw the 1936 landslide coming; it may have been Mr. Hurja who tipped him off.

Mr. Hurja quit working for the Democratic national committee in 1936. Since then he has been a financial adviser, publisher of Pathfinder Magazine, and just recently has taken a leap into his hobby of election prophecy. He says Wendell L. Willkie will win and that if Mr. Roosevelt keeps on slipping there may be a landslide. This is the same Mr. Hurja who used to be accused of having occult powers when he was figuring election outcomes for the Democrats.

Now the Democrats won't love him now!

News behind the News

International Developments Expected Before Election Seen as Roosevelt Boost.

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19—The front benches in Mr. Roosevelt's government are smiling benignly in the face of rather general reports suggesting strong Willkie gains. They seem to know something. One says: "Wait until about 10 days from now, and you will see developments here which will make Mr. Roosevelt's reelection a routine certainty."

A report has leaped through congressional top hats suggesting the shattering of diplomatic relations with Germany might possibly be imminent. Authenticity of the report can be traced no further back than the common suspicion of a few legislative authorities who have put together a couple of things they have heard downtown and added their own modicum of personal suspicion. No authority in the state department from Secretary Hull on down is dropping the slightest stray word that could be so interpreted. Denials, of course, have been made.

Paul Mallon

Nevertheless, it could be.

Something Due Oct. 26

Grave international developments from Washington before election are certainly indicated.

An agent of Mr. Hull is known to have made preliminary arrangements for the secretary to offer "an announcement of the utmost importance on international affairs" next Saturday, Oct. 26. Steps have been taken to rebroadcast this pronouncement throughout the world.

The only direct intimation of the subject matter is that the address is to concern "Oriental affairs." While there has been a remarkable inner growth of official sentiment for stronger action in the far east during the past two weeks. The prevailing sentiments privately expressed by American diplomats still favor keeping the waters of both the Pacific and Atlantic as smooth as possible until after election at least.

Profits Tax Mess

The administration has not been able to dispose of the excess profits tax mess by enacting it into law.

So many valid complaints are rolling into the treasury and congressional tax authorities that a revision of the latest tax law is now considered certain in January before it goes into effect. The most serious complaints are coming from business with a relatively light investment that are just coming into profits after years of losses. These get hit with a far higher tax than large successful corporations which can use the average earnings exemption. Lightly invested new companies cannot use this or the alternative, the invested capital appeasement provision, and may suffer to the point of extermination. A firm in Cleveland, for instance, which has been developing a patent and only now is in a position to recoup development costs has filed the most impressive objection.

New Study Looms

The New Deal has enacted 14 tax bills since 1933, but even the treasury officials have been talking about creating a commission to seek to revise the whole structure. The Republican candidate, Mr. Willkie, has indicated he favors an "integrated" tax system and expects to restudy the whole question if elected. Thus tax revision seems to be a certainty for January no matter who wins, although Mr. Willkie's study would not be along the same lines as Mr. Roosevelt's.

Dardanelles

The men at this government's military telescope first saw the Hitler invasion of Rumania as merely an effort to quarter troops for the winter upon a weak but well stored neighbor. Now they are not so sure. Some advices have been received suggesting the Dardanelles is the Hitler objective and that Russia is to get Persia for her part. One prophecy is safe. Hitler will not go very far in the Mediterranean area as long as the British fleet is supreme there, and the Italians have not even challenged that supremacy.

Need Seen for "Inner Cabinet" To Take Charge of National Defense.

By WALTER LIPPMANN

IT HAS been evident since last spring that the present organization could at best work satisfactorily only in the first phase of the national defense program. We may define the first phase as that of placing government contracts with private firms for the manufacture of the weapons and other supplies called for by the navy and the army. We are within sight of the end of this first phase. Contracts have been let for about three-quarters of the funds appropriated by congress and it is said that the remainder will be under contract within a month. Whether twelve billion dollars' worth of contracts could have been negotiated in less time is debatable. What is reasonably clear is that such delay as there has been would not have been avoided if Mr. Knudsen had, in addition to being the pivotal member of the advisory commission, been its titular chairman.

Be that as it may, the important fact now is that the contracts are almost completed, and we are therefore at the second and much more difficult phase of the whole undertaking to arm and defend the nation. In this new phase there are three great elements: first, to produce at maximum speed the goods contracted for under the current program; second, to develop plans for a second program of still greater scope, though probably more specialized, to prepare for future eventualities; third, to organize the supreme command of the planning, the training, and the disposition of the armed forces.

Council Considered

It is reported by Messrs. Alsop and Kintner that a plan is now under consideration to ask congress to establish a council of five members, including the secretary of the navy, the secretary of war and three others, which with a chairman appointed by the President would direct the national defense. If this is the plan, it does not, it seems to me, quite meet the situation. For what is needed, I submit, is not another agency alongside the existing cabinet and the existing independent offices but a small, compact cabinet which exercises all the powers granted by congress and has full responsibility over all questions—diplomatic, strategic, military, economic and social—which are involved in the total problem of national defense.

Whether it should be called the national defense cabinet or the supreme council of national defense is immaterial. What matter is that it should not be merely advisory, that its authority over all branches of the administration should be clear, and not dependent upon delegation from the President, and that it should be responsible not for one aspect of the national defense, such as the production of materials, but for the national defense as one indivisible task. The "chairman" of such a defense cabinet would, in the nature of things, be the chief executive and commander-in-chief, that is to say, the President. In this cabinet all great questions of policy should be determined, and the decisions of this cabinet should be binding upon all departments of the administration. This cabinet would, with the President, be accountable to congress and to the people for the whole conduct of the national defense. The responsibility would be concentrated in them and all the other department heads would take their orders from the cabinet of national defense.

Need for Inner Cabinet

The reasons why some such super-cabinet or inner cabinet is needed can be made plain, I think, when we consider what it will mean (1) to accelerate production under existing contracts, (2) to plan an enlarged and more specialized program over and above the existing contracts, and (3) to organize the supreme command of the armed forces.

Thus the problem of accelerating production under existing contracts involves, among other things, the following elements: it is important to simplify and standardize the specifications of the army and navy, and also, in some cases, to diversify the specifications where plants exist that can produce an article which, though not exactly what is demanded, is, nevertheless, a practical substitute. The necessary decisions must be taken by a council superior to the departments themselves if there is not to be bureaucratic delay.

To accelerate production it is necessary to relax restrictions which interfere with the maximum output of the existing plants. It is necessary to impose discipline on contractors or subcontractors who do not cooperate whole-heartedly. It is necessary to determine priorities in materials, credits, labor, transportation among the defense contractors, and also as between the defense contractors and ordinary business. Only an organ of government recognized as charged with supreme responsibility for the national defense can have the authority and the prestige to do these things: they will not be done by the separate heads of the existing departments.

Defeatists and Defense

Administration Called Far from Indispensable.

BY THOMAS E. DEWEY

Mr. Dewey made the accompanying remarks at a Republican rally under the auspices of the Allegheny County Republican committee in light armory at Pittsburgh Thursday night.

AFTER seven years of neglect the administration is asking your help. It is asking you to produce materials for our armed forces—materials which I pray shall be used only for our own defense.

A few days ago a distinguished visitor came to your city. I do not know when, if ever before, this gentleman visited a steel plant. But now, in the crisis of an election year, he is very busy looking for plants which have survived these last seven years—plants which would provide a good background for newsreel pictures.

The visit to your state was, of course, strictly non-political. That is why Mayor Sully and Joe Guffey went along to discuss the defense program—the political defense of the New Deal.

Your visitor left you to go to another politically important state—on his non-political tour. At Youngstown, Ohio, there is a great steel plant which has defense contracts in the grand total of $112,000. That is one-one hundred thousandth of the defense appropriation. Much of it is for nails—plain, ordinary nails. But Youngstown was important politically so your visitor made his non-political trip to see how the nail production was coming along.

And, by the way, it's a funny thing, have you heard of any inspection trips to the army maneuvers in the solid south?

But to get back this trip, your visitor took with him to the steel plants and the nail factories that great authority on national defense, the tree surgeon who is the Democratic candidate for governor of Ohio.

AFTER driving through these plants, in company with such great authorities on national defense, your visitors left with this admonition: "The one thing to work for in speeding up this program is more speed, the quicker, the better." He also said: "To you, who are a part of defense ....I give you the message, 'Speed up all you can!'"

Those words settled one political issue in this campaign. They settled the issue of the indispensable man. They settled it because they dramatize with greater force than the words of any other man could do the seven years of economic slowdown, the seven years of deterioration, the seven years of unemployment, the seven years of neglect of our national defenses.

We have practically no tanks—only enough to make one third term campaign newsreel. We have few modern airplanes, a handful of modern rifles, not even adequate shelter for men now enlisting in the army. In this election you and I must place the responsibility for these tragic conditions. In placing that responsibility, let us talk only from the record of facts. Here they are:

With all Europe trembling on the abyss, in January of 1939, Mr. Roosevelt opened the year with a special message. In that message he declared that "no responsible officer" of the United States would advocate developing our air forces to match those of "certain other nations." You know the reversal that took place 17 months later, when Mr. Roosevelt called for 50,000 airplanes—more than all in those "certain other nations" put together. But the damage was already done. Today, our vital fighter airplanes are still largely "on order." Today, we find we can not have the planes we need for two long years, at least.

IN January of this year, with the world at war, Mr. Roosevelt told congress that the $1,800,000,000 then in the budget was, and I quote him, "'in my judgment, a sufficient amount for the coming year.' Five months later he started asking for funds now totaling $10,000,000,000 more. In other words, in his own express judgment, Mr. Roosevent was wrong, desperately wrong, by more than 10 billion dollars out of 12.

Billions for boon-doggling but not for national defense. That was the motto of the New Deal before the third term campaign came on.

Is it any wonder Mr. Roosevelt cries for "speed, more speed, and still more speed?"

You will answer that call for speed by giving it in full measure. But you will also answer

"I know it looks commercial, but it gets results!"

Turkey signed a 15-year mutual assistance treaty with France and Great Britain, the three nations agreeing to "collaborate effectively" and lend each other "all the aid and assistance in their power" should any of the three powers become entangled in Mediterranean hostilities, excepting that Turkey was not obliged to fight Russia.

The German army listed from the opening of the war until Oct. 17, inclusive, "casualties amount to 196 killed, 356 wounded, 114 missing as well as 11 airplanes." The statement said the army captured 25 officers and 664 non-commissioned officers and soldiers of the French Army.

The Reich decree signed Oct. 8 said Germany would take over more than 20,000 square miles of territory lost to her during the last World War.

Another letter in our Family Man symposi

DEAR MR. RUNYON: I don't know whe you would call him an "ideal family m but here he is and I think this is a profile of average man. If not, I am stuck plenty.

"The dog and I greet him at the door wit smile. But do we get a smile in return? would hurt him too much. His greeting is 'ha you seen the headlines?' before he gets too into the house. I must tell you that his t topics of conversation are the European situati and Roosevelt.

"Now that he is in, we may as well eat. W will call it eating just to make it easier. But is more like a foot to mouth race. He make about five trips during a meal between the tabl and radio. Is he interested in what I have bee doing all day? Listen. The conversation goe something like this:

"I: I walked over to Hackensack today.

"He: You did? Did you hear about Roosevelt giving England 50 destroyers?

"I: Yes, dear I think we should help all we can.

"He: Help? My God, are you mad? We need all the destroyers we have and can build for our own defense.

"I: (Meekly) I bought a new hat today. Don't you want to see it?

"He: Later. I don't know where all this is going to end. That guy must be cracked. Fifty destroyers!

"And that goes on and on throughout the meal.

"I WASH the dishes while he listens to the late races, baseball or football scores. After that I have to keep still while he listens to three or four commentators say the same thing in different tones and dialects. He likes the quiz programs, too. But he is still answering the last question while the next question is being asked so we get every other one—maybe.

"Radio personalities, movie stars, shows and books do not mean a thing to him. Clark Gable is an over-rated monkey. Most of the movies stink, and shows aren't worth more than 75 cents tops and besides he can't stand Ethel Merman. Books—you can't learn anything reading books. That is only the authors' interpretation. Read it you like but don't believe half of it. It's mostly bunk.

"About 11 o'clock A. C., (After Commentators) he thinks he would like to play some shuffleboard. (He calls it going for the paper.) Plays about 10 games and comes home at 2 a. m. Most of the time the dog barks when it hears him. He walks differently every time he comes in. It all depends on the load he is carrying. You can't blame the dog for not knowing him. By that time I don't know him either and what's more don't want to.

"HIS OTHER side is fairly good. He gets up most every morning and makes the coffee and fills the house with cigaret smoke. He has good bathroom habits. Always leaves it as clean as he finds it. Puts his soiled linen in the bin and sorts it every week. Takes it to the laundry, calls for it and puts it all neatly away. He isn't very demonstrative. You have to use your imagination when he calls me 'kid.' (I am 35 going on 40 if you know what I mean.) I, in my blind or doglike devotion, hope he means dear.

"Birthday and holidays are a lot of nonsense to him, and he only has accident insurance because that is the way he is going to die. I have always said if he dies a normal death, if there is such a thing, I would have to drag him out of the bed and push him down the stairs before I can collect. If he dies now I will have to build the box and paint the flowers on it—to hear him talk we are practically destitute.

"HE CHISELS a few dollars off my allowance every week. The same story goes with it as he hands it to me. 'I have to get some money together for the taxes.' (Taxes is either the name of a horse or his bookie.) And with all his faults I wouldn't change him for another. He sort of grows on you after you know him and do I know him! X X

"Maybe it is a good thing he does because there are a few fellows around here who think I am lonesome and being neglected. But as long as I keep on thinking I'm not, I'll be safe."

Anecdotes of Ohio

By GILBERT F. DODDS.

Illustrative of the legal processes followed in the early years of Ohio was the inquest into the death of Hughey Grant, prosperous Franklin county farmer.

When Grant was found dead in a woods, the county commissioners ordered Matthew Stokes, constable, to summon 12 jurors to hold an inquest. A dollar and a quarter was granted the constable for his services, and 50 cents to each juror.

Joseph Dawson, who was appointed coroner for the inquest, received $3.83.

The verdict: Grant had gone into the woods, found a bee tree, and in trying to climb it, had fallen to his death.

Grant had come to Franklin county in 1803 from Allegheny county, Pa., and settled upon 400 acres which he purchased several miles southwest of Franklinton. He had a reputation as a marksman, and was credited with shooting many wild animals in the area.

New Deal in Politics

LONDON WORKING TO LESSEN DISCOMFORT

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Oct. 19—London's defenders worked today to lessen the discomforts of life for millions of families who have been spending their nights and much of their days in air raid shelters, with a program to feed them there, too.

Dr. J. J. Mallon, placed in charge of the feeding plan, said the first step would be to organize and stock canteens so that Londoners forced to spend an increasing amount of their time in subways and basements could buy morning and evening meals there.

The capital, digging in for a winter of bombing, credited a measure of relief last night to England's autumnal ally—coastal fog and an inland cloud blanket.

A short burst of anti-aircraft fire at daybreak wound up the big city's forty-second night of attack, which observers termed intermittent and definitely lighter than usual.

Women were told they must give up silk hosiery. Sales will be banned and all silk stockings manufactured will be diverted to overseas trade. Artificial silk stockings will be permitted after the ban, effective next Feb. 1.

AIRCRAFT PLANTS MAP BIG-SCALE EXPANSION

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19—Contracts totaling more than $10,700,000 for expansion of plants of the Boeing Airplane Co. at Seattle, Wash., and Wichita, Kas., were announced today by the war department.

The new facilities will be constructed on the terms of a contract by which the company will provide funds for construction and the government will repay the cost over a period of five years.

At the end of five years the company will have the option to buy the property at cost less depreciation or for some negotiated sum. In the event the facilities are not desired, title will be transferred to the government.

Demands of Axis on Greece Fit in with Grand Plan

By DEWITT MacKENZIE

The reported Axis demands on Greece, to bring that unhappily situated little kingdom under the Berlin-Rome yoke, fit perfectly with the near eastern offensive which Messrs. Hitler and Mussolini are considering in connection with the battle of the Mediterranean.

Greek diplomats in Cairo say they learn demands have been presented calling for territorial concessions, severance of trade relations with Britain, which has guaranteed the security of Greece, and the ousting of King George and the government to make way for a pro-Axis regime.

Informed sources in Berlin deny that any "ultimatum-like" demands have been made on Greece. In Rome, however, the newspaper Relazioni Internationali, which frequently speaks with authority, indicates that demands represent what is in the Axis mind, whether or not they actually have been presented.

Want Bases First

The immediate purpose of the dictators is to obtain naval and air bases for use in connection with the projected offensive, and by the same token to keep Britain out of them. A further consideration is the acquisition of territory for Mussolini, and for Bulgaria as a reward for being a good lad and playing the Axis game.

The axis plans for Bulgaria are far from altruistic. It's understood that Greece is to be made to surrender to Bulgaria a corridor to the Aegean sea. The willingness of the Axis to foster such a scheme is quite understandable when we realize that if Hitler and Mussolini make their assault on Turkey they will need Bulgaria as a base, since it lies up against Turkey's European frontier. That corridor, too, would be invaluable to the Axis.

Strategy Apparent

If you will look at your maps you will see readily enough the strategy in this move against Greece. Acquisition of the Greek bases, coupled with Italian possion of the heavily fortified Dodecanese islands, would provide the Axis with a chain of island defenses right across the mouth of the Aegean.

This would serve a double purpose. It would be calculated to keep the British fleet from aiding Turkey in defense of the all important Dardanelles. It would provide bases for operations, especially by warplanes, against the British in Egypt.

Another piece of news which is highly significant, if true, comes out of Rome today. Usually reliable sources say that negotiations are expected shortly between the Axis powers and Russia to fix their relations. It is assumed by these sources that Germany will try to persuade the Bolshevists not to interfere with the drive against the Dardanelles. In exchange for neutrality Russia would be offered a free hand in Iran (Persia) and Afghanistan.

CRESTLINE GRID TEAM DEFEATED BY WILLARD

Special to The Star

CRESTLINE, Oct. 19—Crestline gridders lost to Willard, 13-0, before about 1,800 fans here last night. The visitors scored both touchdowns in the first half, after which Crestline held the upper hand but was unable to overcome the deficit. Jenney and Wilkinson carried the ball on the first and second period touchdown plunges that capped long field marches. In the last period Crestline waded to the Willard five-yard stripe but fumbled and later was within the 20-yard line but failed to score.

New bleachers purchased by the Downtown Coaches' association were in use for the first time.

Crestline's starting lineup included Mick, Fischer, Barlou, Stump, Shattauer, Corbin, Light, Schill, V. Schill, Jackson and Kuebler.

FIFTH CORPS AREA GIVEN NEW LEADER

Army Assigns Gen. Trott To Succeed Hodges.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 19—The Army's Fifth Corps area, with headquarters at Fort Hayes here, prepared today to receive its second new commanding officer in a week.

The war department assigned Brig. Gen. Clement A. Trott to the post after rescinding an order of a week ago giving it to Brig. Gen. Robert L. Eichelberger.

General Trott, now commander of the Sixth Division at Fort Snelling, will succeed Maj. Gen. Campbell B. Hodges, who has been made tactical commander of the Fifth Corps and stationed at Camp Beauregard, La.

General Eichelberger, now commander of the Presidio at San Francisco, will become superintendent of the U. S. Military Academy at West Point.

Army To Assign Skilled Draftees to Special Jobs

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19—The army has completed new elaborate arrangements for identifying skilled draftees so they may be used in the military tasks at which they will be most productive.

Officials said today that the new system would operate "more effectively" than the classification procedure of World war years. Ready now, it will first be applied to conscript soldiers when the initial contingent of 30,000 is called up November 18.

Essentially, its purpose is to make sure that when the army needs automobile mechanics, electricians or stenographers commanders will know where among the thousands of trainees to find them. In all, there are about 300 specialized military tasks.

Discussing other plans for induction of trainees, officials said they would be kept as close to home as possible. This, it was explained, will save money and help make the men happier.

Tentative quotas by corps areas of the first 800,000 men to be drafted were announced by headquarters here yesterday. Army plans previously made public for calling men to service showed that these first quotas would be exhausted about June 15, by which time new ones may be given out.

The quota for the Fifth Corps Area:

First (Connecticut, Maine, Indiana, Kentucky, Ohio, West Virginia) was set at 81,102.

This distribution of manpower requirements also has been broken down by states but the army has not announced the state quotas, which will in turn be sub-divided by draft districts.

Willkie Hurls Socialism Charge

nounced he will take part in the campaign.

"What Mark Twain would have done with the voice of the sewers at Chicago. If Mark Twain could just have lived to describe it.

"Wouldn't Mark Twain have made it wonderful—the greatest bunch of buccaneers that ever scuttled a ship of state sitting down to plan that third term draft?"

"At Last"

Before leaving St. Louis today, Willkie told students at Washington university in that city that he is frankly engaged in a political campaign.

"Therefore," he said, "it was with great satisfaction that I learned last night that a last, at long last, my opponent has decided to discuss the issues of the campaign.

"At last, at last, he is away from the posts of military inspection trips and forced drafts. And so I am looking forward to the balance of the campaign with a rich relish, with the kind of relish I had when I tramped a campus such as you now tramp and fought for the truth as I then saw it."

At Washington, Mo., Willkie said the Democratic vice presidential candidate, Henry A. Wallace, states if the Republicans are elected there will be a depression.

At Clayton, Mo., Willkie said if elected president he will "take the strong arm of big government off the control of our courts."

At Jefferson City, Mo., the Republican candidate said the argument has been advanced that he is a political amateur and "that the third term candidate is a professional."

"There is not much use in arguing that point," said Willkie. "I will admit it—I will admit that I am a complete amateur when it comes to taking relief money and forcing men to vote because the government performed for them a social obligation in keeping them from starvation.

"Please, if I have any friend in all this vast audience, proclaim to everybody you know that Wendell L. Willkie will never trade bread for votes from those who can least afford to have the bread taken from them.

"Yes I am a political amateur. I do not know how to sit down in dark rooms with Frank Hague and the Kelly-Nashes of Chicago and plot and plan political smears, and the stealing of votes, and the defrauding of the public, and at the same time make speeches over the radio in lofty periods about tolerance love and affection."

WALLACE

tion) have had to to set up the securities and exchange commission, to prevent swindling of small investors in Wall Street . . . We have had to make laws to prevent holding companies from building the fantastic networks of ownership and control that caused so much grief when they began to tumble down during the great Republican panic . . . Another kind of regulation that was necessary was for the protection of wage-earners . . . the right of collective bargaining . . . for the protection of their own interests.

"We have also had to set up a federal standard of wages and hours to prevent sweat-shop conditions and child labor . . . We have revived the 70-year-old drive of the American people versus monopoly (a system) that threatens not only to destroy capitalism but to transform every nation that yields to it into a fascist state."

Mr. Wallace spoke of the program of agricultural adjustment undertaken by the administration, pointed to efforts "to improve the balance between agriculture and industry, between business and finance, between the use of resources and their conservation."

Cites Opposition

Claiming that the administration's farm program cushioned the shock of the war, and the elimination of foreign markets by reason of that war, Mr. Wallace asserted that the farm program has continued to "have the stubborn opposition of the Republicans in Congress".

"Throughout the New Deal," Wallace continued, "we have worked to give advantages to labor and to small business that would help to counter-balance the unhealthy advantage of concentrated wealth and financial power."

He concluded by saying defeat of Roosevelt who is "a man of peace" would "bring consternation" to the nations of South and Central America who depend upon the United States for financial and military aid.

The speaker was introduced by Charles Sawyer of Cincinnati, national Democratic committeeman from Ohio. A. C. Johnston acted as master of ceremonies and, with Attorney Carter W. Schwemer, also of Kenton, assisted in presenting county, district and state candidates.

The Ohio Northern university band, the Kenton high school band and the Henry county "rube" band that played in Des Moines, Ia., when Wallace accepted the nomination furnished music while the crowd waited Wallace's appearance.

John McSweeney of Wooster, the Democratic senatorial nominee, asserted at Akron that the "third term must not be an issue."

He warned voters "against the great unknown of the promises of the other side" and said he shared President Roosevelt's belief "that you can't be a friend of labor and be against the man who employs it."

Gov. Bricker, stressing patriotism in a speech at Newark, asserted that "this country is the last bulwark of Democracy today." Turning to state issues, he said "we had to pay the previous administration's debts to keep the credit of the state good."

Martin L. Davey, the Democratic candidate for governor, said in speeches at Akron and Cadiz that he deserved a third term because of his labor record. He criticized Bricker's handling of unemployment compensation and promised to "distribute equitably" to labor millions of dollars which he said had been permitted to accumulate in Washington.

SMITH MATTRESS CO. PLANT HIT BY FIRE

Flame Breaks Out in Night; Work Bench Ignited.

Damage estimated at between $100 and $150 resulted when a fire broke out at the Smith Mattress Co. plant at 192-198 Blaine avenue shortly after midnight today.

Firemen said sparks from a smouldering rubbish fire near the building apparently were blown through an open window of the plant, igniting a work bench. Sparks from the fire on the bench in turn ignited the inside of the roof of the one-story structure.

Neighbors discovered the fire and summoned firemen from the Central and West Side stations who extinguished the flames.

PREDICT OHIO C. I. O. TO INDORSE THIRD TERM

AKRON, O., Oct. 19—Political talk pervaded the Ohio CIO council's meeting today and brought a prediction from some delegates the body would endorse President Roosevelt for a third term.

In one of the opening speeches of the council's three-day convention, President John Owens told delegates to "beware of false premises" of the Republican party which, he asserted, "if put back into power would cut the jugular vein and let us bleed politically as we have never bled before."

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 19, 1940

Dear Madam—

IN REPLY to your recent letter to the editor, in which you say it would be difficult to choose between the presidential candidates if Mr. Roosevelt hadn't had the experience of two terms already, an observation seems appropriate.

If Mr. Roosevelt is reelected he will be more experienced in 1944 than he is in 1940. In 1948 he will be still more experienced. The experience argument is tricky in a country which always has held that the best way to keep control of politicians is to keep changing them around lest they develop illusions of indispensability.

Your other statement, that you hope Wendell Willkie will run again in 1944 so you can vote for him because you think he's a great man, seems to be a denial of your reason for voting for Mr. Roosevelt this year. You assume that the same argument used by Mr. Roosevelt as a third term candidate can't be used again. Lady, if there's anything to your argument about experience what right would Mr. Willkie have in 1944 to run against an opponent with 12 years of White House experience? What right would anyone have?

Fortunately, experience isn't the only thing that pays off in politics. If it were, every public jobholder would be sitting pretty for life.

Shifting Scenery

THERE is mounting evidence that the scene is being set for momentous action in the near east. Some of the signs are:

Nazi troop movements into Rumania without knowledge of the Russian government—according to the Russian government.

Reports of Russo-Turkish talks in Moscow.

Nazi shipments of submarine parts to naval bases from which submarines could operate in the Black sea—with knowledge of the Russian government, according to the German government.

Intensification of naval activity on the part of Italy, whose role in the war is to keep Great Britain so busy in the Mediterranean it won't have time to undertake any new adventures, such as taking a hand in naval action around the Dardanelles.

Russia's recent admission in Red Star, official army organ, that Germany's air offensive against Great Britain has failed, which may be the prelude to telling Russian soldiers Germany will return to its original intention of extending its empire eastward, up to and around the shores of the Black sea—the sea which Russia thinks of as its "lake."

The Nazi drive against the British Isles has stalled, but that is only one of many fronts on which the axis powers are prepared to make trouble. Hitler's original intentions was to extend the German empire eastward. His reversion to that intention probably is going to be the major development in the war this winter.

The Same Mr. Hurja

WHEN Emil Hurja was tickling the political sensibilities of Democrats with rosy predictions of success at the polls a few years ago, he was ties in the Republican soup. What Republicans disliked about him most was the thing Democrats admired—he was always saying the Democrats were going to win, and he was always right. His calculations as executive director of the Democratic national committee were available to James A. Farley. It was Mr. Farley who saw the 1936 landslide coming; it may have been Mr. Hurja who tipped him off.

Mr. Hurja quit working for the Democratic national committee in 1936. Since then he has been a financial adviser, publisher of Pathfinder Magazine, and just recently has taken a razoo into his hobby of election prophecy. He says Wendell L. Willkie will win and that if Mr. Roosevelt keeps on slipping there may be a landslide. This is the same Mr. Hurja who used to be accused of having occult powers when he was figuring election outcomes for the Democrats.

How the Democrats won't love him now!

Clear Track for Defense

IF NEXT year's automobile looks like the ones now making their appearance, if some nonessentials are hard to get and some disappear from the scene, blame it on the fact that the defense program is seriously under way and that the nation's needs have right of way.

Contracts now being placed by the government are too stupendous to be readily grasped. They mean that many plants now busy on other things must devote their full capacity to the job of turning out government orders.

Every industrial city in the country is feeling the effect of the defense program and many plants are rapidly changing their machines and their tools to the production of army and navy equipment.

To speed up the defense program, contracts are being awarded with time limits which will force factories to give war orders a clear right of way.

Remember, then, when you try to buy something and find the dealer out of stock that it is all in the cause of national defense and domestic demand must take to the siding while the armament express whizzes past.

News Behind the News

International Developments Expected Before Election Seen as Roosevelt Boost.

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19—The front benches in Mr. Roosevelt's government are smiling benignly in the face of rather general reports suggesting strong Willkie gains. They seem to know something. One says: "Wait until about 10 days from now, and you will see developments here which will make Mr. Roosevelt's reelection a routine certainty."

A report has leaped through congressional top hats suggesting the shattering of diplomatic relations with Germany might possibly be imminent. Authenticity of the report can be traced no further back than the common suspicion of a few legislative authorities who have put together a couple of things they have heard downtown and added their own modicum of personal suspicion. No authority in the state department from Secretary Hul on down is dropping the slightest stray word that could be so interpreted. Denials, of course, have been made.

Paul Mallon

Nevertheless, it could be.

Something Due Oct. 26

Grave international developments from Washington before election are certainly indicated.

An agent of Mr. Hull is known to have made preliminary arrangements for the secretary to offer "an announcement of the utmost importance on international affairs" next Saturday, Oct. 26. Steps have been taken to rebroadcast this pronouncement throughout the world.

The only direct intimation of the subject matter is that the address is to concern "Oriental affairs." While there has been a remarkable inner growth of official sentiment for stronger action in the far east during the past two weeks. The prevailing sentiments privately expressed by American diplomats still favor keeping the waters of both the Pacific and Atlantic as smooth as possible until after election at least.

Profits Tax Mess

The administration has not been able to dispose of the excess profits tax mess by enacting it into law.

So many valid complaints are rolling into the treasury and congressional tax authorities that a revision of the latest tax law is now considered certain in January before it goes into effect. The most serious complaints are coming from business with a relatively light investment that are just coming into profits after years of losses. These get hit with a far higher tax than large successful corporations which can use the average earnings exemption. Lightly invested new companies cannot use this or the alternative, the invested capital appeasement provision, and may suffer to the point of extermination. A firm in Cleveland, for instance, which has been developing a patent and only now is in a position to recoup development costs has filed the most impressive objection.

New Study Looms

The New Deal has enacted 14 tax bills since 1933, but even the treasury officials have been talking about creating a commission to seek to revise the whole structure. The Republican candidate, Mr. Willkie, has indicated he favors an "integrated" tax system and expects to restudy the whole question if elected. Thus tax revision seems to be a certainty for January no matter who wins, although Mr. Willkie's study, would not be along the same lines as Mr. Roosevelt's.

Dardanelles

The men at this government's military telescope first saw the Hitler invasion of Rumania as merely an effort to quarter troops for the winter upon a weak but well stored neighbor. Now they are not so sure. Some advices have been received suggesting the Dardanelles is the Hitler objective and that Russia is to get Persia for her part. One prophecy is safe. Hitler will not go very far in the Mediterranean area as long as the British fleet is supreme there, and the Italians have not even challenged that supremacy.

Quip

Telephone number of the national defense commission is Republic 5050, which has given rise to the common curbstone observation here that progress is on the same 50-50 basis.

Today and Tomorrow

Need Seen for "Inner Cabinet" To Take Charge of National Defense.

By WALTER LIPPMANN

IT HAS been evident since last spring that the present organization could at best work satisfactorily only in the first phase of the national defense program. We may define the first phase as that of placing government contracts with private firms for the manufacture of the weapons and other supplies called for by the navy and the army. We are within sight of the end of this first phase. Contracts have been let for about three-quarters of the funds appropriated by congress and it is said that the remainder will be under contract within a month. Whether twelve billion dollars' worth of contracts could have been negotiated in less time is debatable. What is reasonably clear is that such delay as there has been would not have been avoided if Mr. Knudson had, in addition to being the pivotal member of the advisory commission, been its titular chairman.

Be that as it may, the important fact now is that the contracts are almost completed, and we are therefore at the second and much more difficult phase of the whole undertaking to arm and defend the nation. In this new phase there are three great elements: first, to produce at maximum speed the goods contracted for under the current program; second, to develop plans for a second program of still greater scope, though probably more specialized, to prepare for future eventualities; third, to organize the supreme command of the planning, the training, and the disposition of the armed forces.

Council Considered

It is reported by Messrs. Alsop and Kintner that a plan is now under consideration to ask congress to establish a council of five members, including the secretary of the navy, the secretary of war and three others, which with a chairman appointed by the President would direct the national defense. If this is the plan, it does not, it seems to me, quite meet the situation. For what is needed, I submit, is not another agency alongside the existing cabinet and the existing independent offices but a small, compact cabinet which exercises all the powers granted by congress and has full responsibility over all questions—diplomatic, strategic, military, economic and social—which are involved in the total problem of national defense.

Whether it should be called the national defense cabinet or the supreme council of national defense is immaterial. What matter is that it should not be merely advisory, that its authority over all branches of the administration should be clear, and not dependent upon delegation from the President, and that it should be responsible not for one aspect of the national defense, such as the production of materials, but for the national defense as one indivisible task. The "chairman" of such a defense cabinet would, in the nature of things, be the chief executive and commander-in-chief, that is to say, the President. In this cabinet all great questions of policy should be determined, and the decisions of this cabinet should be binding upon all departments of the administration. This cabinet would, with the President, be accountable to congress and to the people for the whole conduct of the national defense. The responsibility would be concentrated in them and all the other department heads would take their orders from the cabinet of national defense.

Need for Inner Cabinet

The reasons why some such super-cabinet or inner cabinet is needed can be made plain, I think, when we consider what it will mean: (1) to accelerate production under existing contracts, (2) to plan an enlarged and more specialized program over and above the existing contracts, and (3) to organize the supreme command of the armed forces.

Thus the problem of accelerating production under existing contracts involves, among other things, the following elements: it is important to simplify and standardize the specifications of the army and navy, and also, in some cases, to diversify the specifications where plants exist that can produce an article which, though not exactly what is demanded, is, nevertheless, a practical substitute. The necessary decisions must be taken by a council superior to the departments themselves if there is not to be bureaucratic delay.

To accelerate production it is necessary to relax restrictions which interfere with the maximum output of the existing plants. It is necessary to impose discipline on contractors or subcontractors who do not cooperate whole-heartedly. It is necessary to determine priorities in materials, credits, labor, transportation among the defense contractors, and also as between the defense contractors and ordinary business. Only an organ of government recognized as charged with supreme responsibility for the national defense can have the authority and the prestige to do these things; they will not be done by the separate heads of the existing departments.

Defeatists and Defense

Administration Called Far from Indispensable.

BY THOMAS E. DEWEY

Mr. Dewey made the accompanying remarks at a Republican rally under the auspices of the Allegheny County Republican committee in Hunt armory at Pittsburgh Thursday night.

AFTER seven years of neglect the administration is asking your help. It is asking you to produce materials for our armed forces—materials which I pray shall be used only for our own defense.

A few days ago a distinguished visitor came to your city. I do not know when, if ever before, this gentleman visited a steel plant. But now, in the crisis of an election year, he is very busy looking for plants which have survived these last seven years—plants which would provide a good background for newsreel pictures.

The visit to your state was, of course, strictly non-political. That is why Mayor Sully and Joe Guffey went along to discuss the defense program—the political defense of the New Deal.

Your visitor left you to go to another politically important state—on his non-political tour. At Youngstown, Ohio, there is a great steel plant which has defense contracts in the grand total of $112,000. That is one-one hundred thousandth of the defense appropriation. Much of it is for nails—plain, ordinary nails. But Youngstown was important politically so your visitor made his non-political trip to see how the nail production was coming along.

And, by the way, it's a funny thing, have you heard of any inspection trips to the army maneuvers in the solid south?

But to get back this trip, your visitor took with him to the steel plants and the nail factories that great authority on national defense, the tree surgeon who is the Democratic candidate for governor of Ohio.

AFTER driving through these plants, in company with such great authorities on national defense, your visitors left with this admonition: "The one thing to work for in speeding up this program is more speed, the quicker, the better." He also said: "To you, who are a part of defense ....I give you the message, 'Speed up all you can!'"

Those words settled one political issue in this campaign. They settled the issue of the indispensable man. They settled it because they dramatize with greater force than the words of any other man could do the seven years of economic slowdown, the seven years of deterioration, the seven years of unemployment, the seven years of neglect of our national defenses.

We have practically no tanks—only enough to make one third term campaign newsreel. We have few modern airplanes, a handful of modern rifles, not even adequate shelter for men now enlisting in the army. In this election you and I must place the responsibility for these tragic conditions. In placing that responsibility, let us talk only from the record of facts. Here they are:

With all Europe trembling on the abyss, in January of 1939, Mr. Roosevelt opened the year with a special message. In that message he declared that "no responsible officer" of the United States would advocate developing our air forces to match those of "certain other nations." You know the reversal that took place 17 months later, when Mr. Roosevelt called for 50,000 airplanes—more than all in those "certain other nations" put together. But the damage was already done. Today, our vital fighter airplanes are still largely "on order." Today, we find we can not have the planes we need for two long years, at least.

IN January of this year, with the world at war, Mr. Roosevelt told congress that the $1,800,000,000 then in the budget was, and I quote him, "'in my judgment, a sufficient amount for the coming year.' Five months later he started asking for funds now totaling $10,000,000,000 more. In other words, in his own express judgment, Mr. Roosevelt was wrong, desperately wrong, by more than 10 billion dollars out of 12.

Billions for boon-doggling but not for national defense. That was the motto of the New Deal before the third term campaign came on.

Is it any wonder Mr. Roosevelt cries for "'speed, more speed, and still more speed?"

You will answer that call for speed by giving it in full measure. But you will also answer

There were 8,000 college students present and among them were 1,300 from Ohio Wesleyan at Delaware. Also among the first voters were Mrs. John Deardorff of Greenville, O., 75 year old, and Mrs. Rebecca Bell of Terre Haute, Ind., who made the pilgrimage here for the meeting. While in Marion they were guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. Deardorff of South State street.

The War a Year Ago

OCTOBER 19, 1939.

Turkey signed a 15-year mutual assistance treaty with France and Great Britain, the three nations agreeing to "collaborate effectively" and lend each other "all the aid and assistance in their power" should any of the three powers become entangled in Mediterranean hostilities, excepting that Turkey was not obliged to fight Russia.

The German army listed from the opening of the war until Oct. 17, inclusive, "casualties amount to 196 killed, 356 wounded, 114 missing as well as 11 airplanes." The statement said the army captured 25 officers and 664 non-commissioned officers and soldiers of the French Army.

The Reich decree signed Oct. 8 said Germany would take over more than 20,000 square miles of territory lost to her during the last World War.

It Might Be You

Or Don't You Listen to Radio, Chisel Your Wife's Allowance and Complain About Expenses?

By DAMON RUNYON

Another letter in our Family Man symposium:

DEAR MR. RUNYON: I don't know whether you would call him an "ideal family man," but here he is and I think this is a profile of the average man. If not, I am stuck plenty.

"The dog and I greet him at the door with a smile. But do we get a smile in return? It would hurt him too much. His greeting is 'have you seen the headlines?' before he gets too far into the house. I must tell you that his two topics of conversation are the European situation and Roosevelt.

"Now that he is in, we may as well eat. We will call it eating just to make it easier. But it is more like a foot to mouth race. He makes about five trips during a meal between the table and radio. Is he interested in what I have been doing all day? Listen. The conversation goes something like this:

"I: I walked over to Hackensack today.

"He: You did? Did you hear about Roosevelt giving England 50 destroyers?

"I: Yes, dear I think we should help all we can.

"He: Help? My God, are you mad? We need all the destroyers we have and can build for our own defense.

"I: (Meekly) I bought a new hat today. Don't you want to see it?

"He: Later. I don't know where all this is going to end. That guy must be cracked. Fifty destroyers!

"And that goes on and on throughout the meal.

"I WASH the dishes while he listens to the late races, baseball or football scores. After that I have to keep still while he listens to three or four commentators say the same thing in different tones and dialects. He likes the quiz programs, too. But he is still answering the last question while the next question is being asked so we get every other one—maybe.

"Radio personalities, movie stars, shows and books do not mean a thing to him. Clark Gable is an over-rated monkey. Most of the movies stink, and shows aren't worth more than 75 cents tops and besides he can't stand Ethel Merman. Books—you can't learn anything reading books. That is only the authors' interpretation. Read if you like but don't believe half of it. It's mostly bunk.

"About 11 o'clock A. C., (After Commentators) he thinks he would like to play some shuffleboard. (He calls it going for the paper.) Plays about 10 games and comes home at 2 a. m. Most of the time the dog barks when it hears him. He walks differently every time he comes in. It all depends on the load he is carrying. You can't blame the dog for not knowing him. By that time I don't know him either and what's more don't want to.

"HIS OTHER side is fairly good. He gets up most every morning and makes the coffee and fills the house with cigaret smoke. He has good bathroom habits. Always leaves it as clean as he finds it. Puts his soiled linen in the bin and sorts it every week. Takes it to the laundry, calls for it and puts it all neatly away. He isn't very demonstrative. You have to use your imagination when he calls me 'kid.' (I am 35 going on 40 if you know what I mean.) I, in my blind or doglike devotion, hope he means dear.

"Birthday and holidays are a lot of nonsense to him, and he only has accident insurance because that is the way he is going to die. I have always said if he dies a normal death, if there is such a thing, I would have to drag him out of the bed and push him down the stairs before I can collect. If he dies now I will have to build the box and paint the flowers on it—to hear him talk we are practically destitute.

"HE CHISELS a few dollars off my allowance every week. The same story goes with it as he hands it to me. 'I have to get some money together for the taxes.' (Taxes is either the name of a horse or his bookie.) And with all his faults I wouldn't change him for another. He sort of grows on you after you know him and do I know him! X X

"Maybe it is a good thing he does because there are a few fellows around here who think I am lonesome and being neglected. But as long as I keep on thinking I'm not, I'll be safe."

Anecdotes of Ohio

By GILBERT F. DODDS.

Illustrative of the legal processes followed in the early years of Ohio was the inquest into the death of Hughey Grant, prosperous Franklin county farmer.

When Grant was found dead in a woods, the county commissioners ordered Matthew Stokes, constable, to summon 12 jurors to hold an inquest. A dollar and a quarter was granted the constable for his services, and 50 cents to each juror.

Joseph Dawson, who was appointed coroner for the inquest, received $3.83.

The verdict: Grant had gone into the woods, found a bee tree, and in trying to climb it, had fallen to his death.

Grant had come to Franklin county in 1809 from Allegheny county, Pa., and settled upon 400 acres which he purchased several miles southwest of Franklinton. He had a reputation as a marksman, and was credited with shooting many wild animals in the area.

New Deal in Politics

(From Baltimore Sun (Dem.)

The political power of the New Deal, which is being used in the presidential campaign to break down the tradition against a third term and return Mr. Roosevelt to office in violation of that tradition, rests on political patronage, work-relief employment, subsidies to industries and individuals and loans and grants to corporations, states, cities, counties and towns. Japs Bomb Road

Japanese naval warplanes, apparently flying from bases in French Indo-China, struck at the reopened Burma road, hitting hardest at bridges along the precarious arms route to the Chinese government. Hundreds of trucks loaded with long-delayed vital supplies for Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek's Chinese forces started forth over the road yesterday.

A wave of optimism swept over the Chinese government, military and civilian circles, not only because of the prospect of receiving the supplies but because the reopening of the route was taken to indicate a stiffer British policy toward Japan.

LONDON WORKING TO LESSEN DISCOMFORT

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Oct. 19—London's defenders worked today to lessen the discomforts of life for millions of families who have been spending their nights and much of their days in air raid shelters, with a program to feed them there, too.

Dr. J. J. Mallon, placed in charge of the feeding plan, said the first step would be to organize and stock canteens so that Londoners forced to spend an increasing amount of their time in subways and basements could buy morning and evening meals there.

The capital, digging in for a winter of bombing, credited a measure of relief last night to England's autumnal ally—coastal fog and an inland cloud blanket.

A short burst of anti-aircraft fire at daybreak wound up the big city's forty-second night of attack, which observers termed intermittent and definitely lighter than usual.

Women were told they must give up silk hosiery. Sales will be banned and all silk stockings manufactured will be diverted to overseas trade. Artificial silk stockings will be permitted after the ban, effective next Feb. 1.

GERMANS SEE BRITISH MOVE IN BALKANS

By The Associated Press

BUCHAREST, Oct. 19—German circles in Rumania charged today that the British minister to Bulgaria has been secretly attempting to arrange for passage of British troops through Bulgaria and Rumania.

They said "formation of the British Balkans program" was under way at a council of British diplomatic representatives at Istanbul, Turkey.

The Tageblatt, mouthpiece of the German legation in Rumania, said George Rendel, British minister to Sofia, recently had presented King Boris of Bulgaria a letter from London asking him to protest the presence of German soldiers in Rumania and to prevent their entrance into Bulgaria.

AIRCRAFT PLANTS MAP BIG-SCALE EXPANSION

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19—Contracts totaling more than $10,700,000 for expansion of plants of the Boeing Airplane Co. at Seattle, Wash., and Wichita, Kas., were announced today by the war department.

The new facilities will be constructed on the terms of a contract by which the company will provide funds for construction and the government will repay the cost over a period of five years.

At the end of five years the company will have the option to buy the property at cost less depreciation or for some negotiated sum. In the event the facilities are not desired, title will be transferred to the government.

Demands of Axis on Greece Fit in with Grand Plan

By DEWITT MacKENZIE

The reported Axis demands on Greece, to bring that unhappily situated little kingdom under the Berlin-Rome yoke, fit perfectly with the near eastern offensive which Messrs. Hitler and Mussolini are considering in connection with the battle of the Mediterranean.

Greek diplomats in Cairo say they learn demands have been presented calling for territorial concessions, severance of trade relations with Britain, which has guaranteed the security of Greece, and the ousting of King George and the government to make way for a pro-Axis regime.

Informed sources in Berlin deny that any "ultimatum-like" demands have been made on Greece. In Rome, however, the newspaper Relazioni Internationali, which frequently speaks with authority, indicates that demands represent what is in the Axis mind, whether or not they actually have been presented.

Want Bases First

The immediate purpose of the dictators is to obtain naval and air bases for use in connection with the projected offensive, and by the same token to keep Britain out of them. A further consideration is the acquisition of territory for Mussolini, and for Bulgaria as a reward for being a good lad and playing the Axis game.

The axis plans for Bulgaria are far from altruistic. It's understood that Greece is to be made to surrender to Bulgaria a corridor to the Aegean sea. The willingness of the Axis to foster such a scheme is quite understandable when we realize that if Hitler and Mussolini make their assault on Turkey they will need Bulgaria as a base, since it lies up against Turkey's European frontier. That corridor, too, would be invaluable to the Axis.

Strategy Apparent

If you will look at your maps you will see readily enough the strategy in this move against Greece. Acquisition of the Greek bases, coupled with Italian possession of the heavily fortified Dodecanese islands, would provide the Axis with a chain of island defenses right across the mouth of the Aegean.

This would serve a double purpose. It would be calculated to keep the British fleet from aiding Turkey in defense of the all important Dardanelles. It would provide bases for operations, especially by warplanes, against the British in Egypt.

Another piece of news which is highly significant, if true, comes out of Rome today. Usually reliable sources say that negotiations are expected shortly between the Axis powers and Russia to fix their relations. It is assumed by these sources that Germany will try to persuade the Bolshevists not to interfere with the drive against the Dardanelles. In exchange for neutrality Russia would be offered a free hand in Iran (Persia) and Afghanistan.

CRESTLINE GRID TEAM DEFEATED BY WILLARD

Special to The Star

The visitors scored both touchdowns in the first half, after which Crestline held the upper hand but was unable to overcome the deficit. Jenney and Wilkinson carried the ball on the first and second period touchdown plunges that capped long field marches. In the last period Crestline waded to the Willard five-yard stripe but fumbled and later was within the 20-yard line but failed to score.

New bleachers purchased by the Downtown Coaches' association were in use for the first time.

Crestline's starting lineup included Mick, Fischer, Barlou, Stump, Shattauer, Corbin, Light, Schill, V. Schill, Jackson and Kuebler.

RAINS ADD TO FLOOD TROUBLES IN SPAIN

By The Associated Press

BARCELONA, Spain, Oct. 19—Torrential rains in the eastern Pyrenees today further burdened flooding Spanish rivers whose known toll already had mounted to 133 dead and missing.

FIFTH CORPS AREA GIVEN NEW LEADER

Army Assigns Gen. Trott To Succeed Hodges.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 19—The Army's Fifth Corps area, with headquarters at Fort Hayes here, prepared today to receive its second new commanding officer in a week.

The war department assigned Brig. Gen. Clement A. Trott to the post after rescinding an order of a week ago giving it to Brig. Gen. Robert L. Eichelberger.

General Trott, now commander of the Sixth Division at Fort Snelling, will succeed Maj. Gen. Campbell B. Hodges, who has been made tactical commander of the Fifth Corps and stationed at Camp Beauregard, La.

General Eichelberger, now commander of the Presidio at San Francisco, will become superintendent of the U. S. Military Academy at West Point.

Army To Assign Skilled Draftees to Special Jobs

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19—The army has completed new elaborate arrangements for identifying skilled draftees so they may be used in the military tasks at which they will be most productive.

Officials said today that the new system would operate "more effectively" than the classification procedure of World war years. Ready now, it will first be applied to conscript soldiers when the initial contingent of 30,000 is called up November 18.

Essentially, its purpose is to make sure that when the army needs automobile mechanics, electricians or stenographers commanders will know where among the thousands of trainees to find them. In all, there are about 300 specialized military tasks.

Discussing other plans for induction of trainees, officials said they would be kept as close to home as possible. This, it was explained, will save money and help make the men happier.

Tentative quotas by corps areas of the first 800,000 men to be drafted were announced by headquarters here yesterday. Army plans previously made public for calling men to service showed that these first quotas would be exhausted about June 15, by which time new ones may be given out.

The quota for the Fifth Corps Area:

First (Connecticut, Maine, Indiana, Kentucky, Ohio, West Virginia) was set at 91,192.

This distribution of manpower requirements also has been broken down by states but the army has not announced the state quotas, which will in turn be sub-divided by draft districts.

SAFE AFTER STORM

By The Associated Press

HONOLULU, Oct. 19 — Radio signals hummed from Wake Island again today to tell the world that all members of Pan American airways' little colony there were safe after a terrific storm.

Willkie Hurls Socialism Charge

nounced he will take part in the campaign.

"What Mark Twain would have done with the voice of the sewers at Chicago. If Mark Twain could just have lived to describe it.

"Wouldn't Mark Twain have made it wonderful—the greatest bunch of buccaneers that ever scuttled a ship of state sitting down to plan that third term draft?"

"At Last"

Before leaving St. Louis today, Willkie told students at Washington university in that city that he

tion) have had to to set up the securities and exchange commission, to prevent swindling of small investors in Wall Street . . . We have had to make laws to prevent holding companies from building the fantastic networks of ownership and control that caused so much grief when they began to tumble down during the great Republican panic . . . Another kind of regulation that was necessary was for the protection of wage-earners . . . the right of collective bargaining . . . for the protection of their own interests.

"We have also had to set up a federal standard of wages and hours to prevent sweat-shop conditions and child labor . . . We have revived the 70-year-old drive of the American people versus monopoly (a system) that threatens not only to destroy capitalism but to transform every nation that yields to it into a fascist state."

Mr. Wallace spoke of the program of agricultural adjustment undertaken by the administration, pointed to efforts "to improve the balance between agriculture and industry, between business and finance, between the use of resources and their conservation."

Cites Opposition

Claiming that the administration's farm program cushioned the shock of the war, and the elimination of foreign markets by reason of that war, Mr. Wallace asserted that the farm program has continued to "have the stubborn opposition of the Republicans in Congress".

"Throughout the New Deal," Wallace continued, "we have worked to give advantages to labor and to small business that would help to counter-balance the unhealthy advantage of concentrated wealth and financial power."

He concluded by saying defeat of Roosevelt who is "a man of peace" would "bring consternation" to the nations of South and Central America who depend upon the United States for financial and military aid.

The speaker was introduced by Charles Sawyer of Cincinnati, national Democratic committeeman from Ohio. A. C. Johnston acted as master of ceremonies and, wife Attorney Carter W. Schwemer, also of Kenton, assisted in presenting county, district and state candidates.

The Ohio Northern university band, the Kenton high school band and the Henry county "rube" band that played in Des Moines, Ia., when Wallace accepted the nomination furnished music while the crowd waited Wallace's appearance.

John McSweeney of Wooster, the Democratic senatorial nominee, asserted at Akron that the "third term must not be an issue."

He warned voters "against the great unknown of the promises of the other side" and said he shared President Roosevelt's belief "that you can't be a friend of labor and be against the man who employs it."

Gov. Bricker, stressing patriotism in a speech at Newark, asserted that "this country is the last bulwark of Democracy today." Turning to state issues, he said "we had to pay the previous administration's debts to keep the credit of the state good."

Martin L. Davey, the Democratic candidate for governor, said in speeches at Akron and Cadiz that he deserved a third term because of his labor record. He criticized Bricker's handling of unemployment compensation and promised to "distribute equitably" to labor millions of dollars which he said had been permitted to accumulate in Washington.

SMITH MATTRESS CO. PLANT HIT BY FIRE

Flame Breaks Out In Night; Work Bench Ignited.

Damage estimated at between $100 and $150 resulted when a fire broke out at the Smith Mattress Co. plant at 192-198 Blaine avenue shortly after midnight today.

Firemen said sparks from a smouldering rubbish fire near the building apparently were blown through an open window of the plant, igniting a work bench. Sparks from the fire on the bench in turn ignited the inside of the roof of the one-story structure.

Neighbors discovered the fire and summoned firemen from the Central and West Side stations who extinguished the flames.

PREDICT OHIO C. I. O. TO INDORSE THIRD TERM

AKRON, O., Oct. 19—Political talk pervaded the Ohio CIO council's meeting today and brought a prediction from some delegates the body would endorse President Roosevelt for a third term.

In one of the opening speeches of the council's three-day convention, President John Owens told delegates to "beware of false promises" of the Republican party which, he asserted, "if put back into power would cut the jugular vein and let us bleed politically as we have never bled before."

How Draft Medical Exams Will Be Conducted

During ... the usual flow of ... from local selective ... to induction sta- ... final examination and ... then to reception cen- ... classification and other ... then to the organiza- ... installations or replace- ... centers in which they are ... to serve.

"The induction station serves the same purpose as the recruiting station does in times of voluntary enlistment. Therefore recruiting stations, augmented as required, will be used as induction stations. Corps area commanders are authorized to establish induction stations at any point in their areas. It has been estimated that from nine to twelve induction stations for each corps area will be sufficient, including at least one in every state, which would make about one hundred in all. In sparsely settled areas the induction station may consist of a number of physicians and army officers who will travel from place to place.

Provisions for Comfort

"In each of these inductions there will be provided ample space, light and toilet facilities. During cold weather the rooms will be heated so that the young men who will be compelled to be nude during the examination will not suffer from cold. Special rooms will be provided for conducting eye, ear, nose and throat examinations, and there must be a room with a sink and toilet facilities for use as a laboratory.

"1. Laboratory examination of the urine and, when required, of sputum, blood smears and urethral discharges.

"2. Withdrawal of blood for the serologic test for syphilis. Blood specimen will be obtained and subsequently tested in federal or state laboratories by personnel assigned by the United States Public Health Service.

3. Eye, ear, nose, throat and dental examinations. Registrants may remain clothed up to this point if desirable. From here on they must be completely nude.

"4. Height, weight and chest measurements and examination of the bones, joints and feet. This may be done in one large or two small rooms. The room for the orthopedic examiner should be of sufficient size so that four examinees may be brought in at one time and put through the required movements.

"5. General surgical examination.

"6. Examination of heart and lungs, for which three rooms will be required, so situated that examiners will not be disturbed by outside noises.

"7. Neuropsychiatric examination.

"8. Checking of records by the chief of the examining board. At this time requests for x-ray, laboratory and other special examinations will be prepared and provision made when necessary for the examinee to be conducted to the proper army hospital or civilian institution for the examination. Arrangements for a local hospital or clinic to provide these facilities must be made by the chief of the board prior to beginning the examinations. In occasional instances proctoscopic (inspecting the rectum), electrocardiographic (graphic tracing of the electric current produced by the heart's activity) and other special examinations may be required.

Will Employ Physician

"As explained by Col. Albert G. Love in The Journal, Oct. 5, the specialists to be assigned to such service will probably include civilian specialists as well as reserve officers, who will be on temporary duty. Civilian physicians will be on a per diem basis and will be used as long as their services are required. It has been proposed that they be paid at the base pay of major with allowances for travel and subsistence while on duty. Physicians preferred for this service are those who, on account either of age or of physical infirmities or because of reasons affecting their civil life, cannot go into military camp. It has been tentatively estimated that the time required for this service might approximate twenty to thirty days in the period between Oct. 16 and Feb. 1.

"In order to aid the Army Medical Department in securing physicians for this service, the Committee on Medical Preparedness requests physicians who wish to volunteer to write at once to the Committee on Medical Preparedness, 535 North Dearborn Street, Chicago, marking the envelop 'Induction Board'."

YOUR HEALTH

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Questions and Answers

Mrs. H. C. M.:—"Should a man who claims he had a cigarette cough, cough all night continually?"

Answer—Anything called a "cigarette cough" should be investigated. Many people lull themselves with the name "cigarette cough" when there is a chronic process in the lungs as real cause of the cough, that could be discovered.

M. L.: "Is lack of Vitamin B what causes the hair to turn gray? Will a sufficient intake of Vitamin B prevent premature graying? In what form can Vitamin B be taken?"

Answer—There has been some talk of lack of Vitamin B causing premature gray hair, but I doubt the evidence. We are blaming too much on the vitamins lately. But at any rate it does no harm to take plenty of Vitamin B. It can be taken in the form of whole rice, whose wheat, yeast, or in concentrated form as thiamin chloride.

H. K., Flint, Mich.—"Can you give me the cause of repeated attacks of streptococcus sore throat?"

Answer—It may be repeated infection. The streptococcus creates little immunity and repeated attacks are possible. Look to the milk supply More likely is it that the so-called streptococcus sore throat is a manifestation of the cryptic infection in the tonsils or tonsil stubs.

A. J. C.: "I am wondering if this is any cause for alarm: during the hot weather my feet, ankles and legs swell considerably—my ankles about an inch all around."

Answer—There is no reason why hot weather shoud cause such a swelling in the ankles. It is true in hot weather the feet swell somewhat from superficial congestion, but what you describe is too much for simple hot weather to be a factor. The commonest cause of such a condition is varicose veins.

• • •

L. J. B., East St. Louis, Ill.:—"Kindly advise about scarlet fever shots for my daughter, aged three. My family doctor advises against using them."

Answer — I agree with your family doctor.

H. R. W.: "Is it possible to cure a hernia by means of injections?"

Answer—Yes, in properly selected cases.

T. G., Detroit, Mich.—"Could you tell me how long scarlet fever germs live? One of my children had scarlet fever six weeks ago and is well now. Is there any danger of the other children taking it?"

Answer—Scarlet fever has a long quarantine period. There is danger of a convalescent patient giving it to others up to a period of six weeks after all symptoms have subsided. This is entirely different from measles in which disease it is safe to allow the patient to mingle with others within a day or two.

M. S., Hoquiam, Wash.—"Will the taking of table salt cause hardening of the arteries?"

Answer—No, many opinions to the contrary, salt does no harm. The body requires a certain amount a day, and all foods contain some salt. Vegetables contain less than other foods and salt allows us to enjoy many vegetables that without it would be unpalatable.

Cincinnati Music Group in Program Here Tomorrow

"LARK," Haydn, and a piano quintet by Schumann will be played by the Cincinnati Conservatory String quartet Sunday afternoon in the ballroom at Hotel Harding, when members of the Marion Lecture-Recital club open the fall and winter program season. The program is scheduled for 3 o'clock.

The musicians will play the allegro moderato, adagio cantabile, menuetto allegretto and finale vivace movements of the Haydn opus 64. Miss Frances Burnette of Cincinnati pianist will accompany the musicians in the Schumann number. The movements include allegro brillante, In mod d'una Marcia-un poco largamente, scherzo molto vivace, allegro ma non troppo.

Last minute changes have been made in the program because of the serious illness of Edgar Stillman Kelley, who with Mrs. Kelley, was to have been a guest at the program tomorrow. Dr. Kelley's composition, quintet for piano and strings, opus 20, was to have been played by the quartet with Mrs. Kelley at the piano.

The quartet has received high praise for its work in Cincinnati. In praising the work of the musicians Eugene Goossens, conductor of the Cincinnati Symphony orchestra said: "Each time I have listened to these players I have been deeply impressed not only by their beautiful tone quality and the precision of their ensemble, but also by the sensitive rendering they have given to the works performed at their concerts."

Take Better Pictures

Expensive Equipment Is Often a Handicap

This is the first in a series of five weekly articles on taking pictures.

By The Associated Press

It's a good bet that an expensive camera in the hands of an inexperienced person will net fewer good pictures than a camera costing less than $25. The reason is very simple.

Expensive cameras are versatile and the more versatile they are the more gadgets they have and the more complex and difficult they are to operate.

Inexpensive cameras, on the other hand, are made for people who have little time to spend on the dark mysteries of photography (chemistry, optics, etc.) and are constructed with a minimum of gadgets. Naturally, these cheap cameras won't do all the tricks that the expensive ones do, but they will produce very good snapshots.

As between spending $5 or $25 for a camera—well, that's a matter of what you want to do with your camera. The box type, which costs up to $5, is used with great success by many persons.

It is very simple to operate. However, it's important to know that the shutters on such cameras work at 1/25 of a second. You can't get sharp images of most moving objects at that speed.

The risk of blurred action showing up in your picture is lessened as the distance between camera and moving object is increased. Also, the subject does not blur so much if it moves directly toward or away from the camera.

Thus, with a box camera it is possible to get a fairly sharp picture of a person walking if he is snapped about 15 feet away, as he comes directly toward the camera. Such a shot, however, could not stand much enlargement.

If you really want to take action pictures you should have a camera with a shutter speed of at lest 1/100 of a second. Such a camera can be bought for around $20.

Learn Exposures

But in any case the first step is to learn something about the exposure required for various kinds of lighting conditions.

The accompanying simplified exposure table should be helpful. Paste it on a piece of cardboard (if possible on the back of your camera) and carry it with you.

If you still have difficulties, a good way to get help is to write to the company that makes the film you use. The American film companies will even examine your negatives and give advice.

BLURRED ACTION is the result in a picture made with a slow lens when the figure is moving across the field of vision.

GOOD ACTION is possible with a slow lens if the subject is moving directly toward or away from the camera and is not too near.

An Outdoor Exposure Table

For Days When Sun Is Shining	Shutter Speed	Stop Openings—F System	For Fixed-Focus Box Cameras
GROUP 1—Beach scenes, Distant Landscapes	1/25	22	Stop 3 (smallest)
GROUP 2—Regular landscapes, showing some sky but main subject in foreground	1/25	16	Stop 2
GROUP 3 — Portraits, buildings, street scenes	1/25	11	Stop 1
GROUP 4—Pictures made in the open shade (not under trees or on porches). Portraits, buildings, street scenes	1/25	8	Stop 3

(On fairly bright cloudy days exposure should be increased two times.)

Reports Given In Civic Orchestra Ticket Campaign

PARTIAL reports of the sale of tickets for the Marion Civic orchestra's concert season were given at a report tea held by the Woman's Symphony Board yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Fillmore Young on Mt. Vernon avenue.

Reports were encouraging at yesterday's meeting but there still are many tickets to be sold before the goal is reached, Mrs. Harold K. Mouser, president of the board, announced. The board is particularly anxious that the concert series be a civic project with every resident of Marion backing the orchestra.

The drive will continue, Mrs. Mouser said today, and there will be a report meeting in the near future when it is hoped that all members will have their quotas made and present their reports.

Night Club Girls in Egypt Fight Ouster Threats

CAIRO, Egypt (Correspondence of The Associated Press) — Two hundred night club girls from the Balkans, regarded suspiciously by British counter-espionage agents as possible Mati Haris, are protesting lustily against moves to give them the bum's rush out of Egypt.

One group held a vociferous indignation meeting, appointed a spokesman to communicate their grievances to the press. Others thought it better to plead individually with influential personages frequenting their night spots.

Officials disclosed that there had been some arrests among entertainers on charges of spying and that some already had been expelled as "dangerous women."

The Balkans supply Egypt with virtually all its night club artists, except for hip-swaying Oriental dancers, a local specialty.

The ones the British want to get out of the country for the most part are Hungarians and Rumanians. There are a few American performers at one Cairo show, but they are not under suspicion.

"We're innocent," the protesting group shouts. "Why should we be deprived of the right to make a living, especially now when it's hard and expensive to get home and just at a time when a big British army in Egypt makes business good?"

"Not always so innocent as they seem—or so dumb," counter British operatives. They add that in all cases of espionage uncovered among the girls money, rather than pro-Nazi sentiment, proved the incentive.

Among the methods of transmitting information to the enemy uncovered by the British agents have been clandestine radio stations, pigeons, buttons and rings, in which papers may be concealed. Their collection looks like a cross between a dressmaker's shop and a jewelry store.

War Brings Drastic Changes in Way of Life of Average Japanese Citizen

TOKYO — (Correspondence of The Associated Press) — Japan's new "national structure" is visibly affecting the lighter side of life today.

It is chastening women's dress, eliminating movies and dancing, streamlining weddings, curtailing the consumption of food, liquor and cigarets, depriving the golfer of his caddy, and taking the American lingo out of baseball.

And what does all this mean?

Not even the Japanese are quite sure. A new form of government has come into being, strongly centralized. It is intended to make the nation strong, in order to end the war in China and cash in on the "golden opportunity" in Indo-China and the Dutch East Indies.

Today, Japanese women are not supposed to wear vivid kimonos. The eye-shattering sash, for which the costumes are famous, is disappearing. Censors admonish them publicly if they persist in displaying the bright colors.

Some sashes have even been forcibly removed on the streets.

The dance halls are closed. A police permit, not always granted, is necessary for a private dancing party. Popular music, if it excites amorous imaginings, gets the police ax.

Nor can the tired Japanese businessman find solace in his time-honored refuge, the cafes or geisha quarters. Restrictions have been placed on liquor, late hours, and food. The cafes close at 11 o'clock, the geisha houses at midnight. What's more, patrons are strictly enjoined against using private automobiles — and thereby consuming gasoline — for anything but business.

As for weddings and funerals, they must be simplified under the new order in East Asia.

Even sports — and the Japanese is an ardent athlete — have felt the heavy hand. The Japanese golfer is supposed to toughen himself by carrying his own clubs. He is not supposed to use his car to get to the course.

It is the fashion to trudge long, dusty miles from the nearest railway station.

19th Hole Is Out

And the "19th holes" is definitely unpatriotic.

Baseball, although a foreign importation, has been allowed to stay, because it is enormously popular and good exercise. But the new structure calls for the elimination of American baseball terms.

The umpire no longer yells "play ball!" he calls the Japanese for "let the contest begin."

He can't say, "foul, strike, double-play, out," and so forth. Japanese tongue-twisters must be substituted.

Chief sufferers in this are the radio announcers. In moments of crisis, when lightning description should be forthcoming, they stumble and stammer, hopelessly bogged down, without the familiar terminology.

Japan's man on the street is impressed by the new structure, but he isn't sure that he likes it.

"Pastor Hall," Anti-Nazi Film, Coming To Palace

English Picture To Be Shown Monday and Tuesday; "Private Affairs" on Screen Sunday.

The sensational English film, "Pastor Hall," produced in England and brought to this country by James Roosevelt, the President's movie-producing son, will be featured on the Palace theater screen Monday and Tuesday.

Based on a story by Ernst Toller, the film is a stirring and dramatic motion picture of life in Nazi Germany and tells its story quite candidly—in fact so candidly it failed to pass censorships in Chicago and Pennsylvania.

English Cast

The cast is thoroughly English, headed by Wilfred Lawson, Nova Pilbeam and Seymour Hicks who are among Britain's most popular stars.

The story deals with a village minister, Pastor Hall, who defies the infiltration of the Nazi regime in the small German village where he lives. The story is complicated by the fact that the village Nazi leader falls in love with the minister's daughter and attempts to spare Pastor Hall's life if the daughter will marry him. The minister scorns all attempts of his friends to sneak him out of the country, preferring to remain with his people and denounce the Nazis as long as possible.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt appears at the opening of the picture when she gives a prologue written by Robert E. Sherwood, famous American playwright.

Sunday Program

Tomorrow, for the one day only, the Palace has booked the stage show, "Bring On the Girls," and a movie, "Private Affairs," starring Nancy Kelly, Roland Young and Hugh Herbert.

On Wednesday, also for one day, the Palace screen feature will be "Dance, Girl, Dance," a lavish musical comedy starring Maureen O'Hara, Louis Hayward and Lucille Ball. The story centers around the adventures of two showgirls who become stranded when their show goes broke and set out to recoup their fortunes in New York.

Fred MacMurray and Patricia Morison are starred in the Thursday - through - Saturday picture, "Rangers of Fortune," a tale of western romance.

2 Features At Marion

Dead End Kids Picture and Comedy on Double Bill for 2 Days.

"You're Not So Tough," starring the Dead End Kids and Henry Armetta, and "I Can't Give You Anything But Love," featuring Broderick Crawford and Peggy Moran, are double-feature fare at the Marion theater tomorrow and Monday.

The Dead End film is somewhat different from the others in which the Kids have starred inasmuch as Billy Halop, the leader of the crowd, discovers he isn't as tough as he thinks. He falls in love with Nan Grey, who has the principal feminine role. "I Can't Give You Anything But Love," is a sparkling comedy featuring a host of new performers.

The Tuesday-Wednesday shows will include "French Without Tears," starring Ray Milland and Ellen Drew, and the film version of "Grapes of Wrath," John Steinbeck's famous novel of America's migratory farm workers.

For Thursday through Saturday the Marion has booked "Blazing Six Shooters," starring Charles Starrett, and "The Man from Montreal."

All-Girl Revue and Orchestra To Be at Palace

BEGONIA
Girl Band Director

A gala all-girl revue, "Bring On the Girls," will be presented on the Palace theater stage tomorrow only.

Thirty girls are scheduled to take part in the one-hour show. Music will be furnished by the all-girl orchestra, Begonia and her "Co-ed Melodears."

Among the featured acts will be comedy skits by Maude Hilton, imitations from life by Chic Kennedy, comedienne Hazel Kennedy, trapeze performances by the Nelson sisters and singing and dancing numbers by vivacious Betty Lee. Another featured act is "Her Honor, the Judge," a short comedy based on a Reno divorce mix-up.

The screen fare will include "Private Affairs," starring Nancy Kelly, Roland Young and Hugh Herbert.

'Rebecca' Booked on Double Feature at State Theater

"Rebecca," a rare treat for drama lovers, will be brought back to the State Sunday and Monday. All the brilliance and glamour of the mysterious Manderley of Daphne du Maurier's best selling mystery novel is caught in this Alfred Hitchcock-directed picture. Joan Fontaine is co-starred with Laurence Olivier. They, together with Judith Anderson who plays the role of the housekeeper at Manderley, create three extraordinary characterizations. The other picture on a double feature bill will be a Jack Randall western, "Pioneer Days."

Raymond Massey is starred with Sabu, the delightful Indian boy in "Drums," which will be given second-run showings Tuesday and Wednesday on a bill with "Hawaiian Nights," featuring Jimmy Downs.

"Nothing Sacred," one of the screwball comedies, starring Carole Lombard and Fredric March, will be shown Thursday through Saturday. A Bob Steel action picture, "Billy the Kid from Texas," will be on the same program.

SCENE FROM FEATURE COMEDY AT OHIO

George Murphy dishes out a spanking to Brenda Joyce in this scene from their new feature comedy, "Public Deb. No. 1," now at the Ohio through Monday.

DEFEATISTS

it, remembering that the reason for that speed is the total failure of this administration to prepare in time. You will answer it by calling for a new administration of our government. You will answer it by electing a Republican administration headed by Wendell Willkie and Charles McNary.

We know we need total defense against total war. We know we lack plants even to build the things we need. Is this, too, mere negligence and lack of foresight? If so, it could be understood, though not forgiven. Is it rather the result of deliberate policy? I say to you it stems way back to Mr. Roosevelt's San Francisco speech in 1932. He said, "Our industrial plant is built. The problem just now is whether under existing conditions it is not over-built. A mere builder of more industrial plants is as likely to be a danger as a help." That philosophy is the cornerstone of the New Deal. That philosophy we Republicans reject.

The San Francisco message of defeatism is the reason why Mr. Roosevelt has to cry "speed, and still more speed"—speed to make up for seven years of internal deterioration.

Mr. Roosevelt now has to ask congress to appropriate 740 million dollars of the people's money to build those very plants he said we did not need. In the last three months, the New Deal has made the most complete about-face in American political history.

TAX policies have deliberately discouraged savings from going into new enterprises. The undistributed profits tax was frankly designed to turn money away from expanding and building new plants. Almost every utterance from high administration sources has included attacks upon those who might build new plants. You know the results. You know the results in loss of opportunity, in lack of security, in lack of new jobs.

We are fighting many battles in this campaign. We are fighting to restore the right of every American to a job. We are fighting to restore the dignity of every individual human being. We are fighting to restore the future for your children and mine.

I leave it to you—is there anything indispensable about this administration? I leave it to you—on such a record can anyone honestly claim that this administration can safely be given four more years? Do we want 12 continuous years of failure?

Comedy Film On Ohio Bill

"Public Debt No. 1" To Be Shown Through Monday; Jane Withers Coming.

Elsa Maxwell, famed thrower of unusual and elaborate parties, plays hostess on the screen for the second time in "Public Deb. No. 1," now at the Ohio through Monday. George Murphy, dancer-de-luxe, and pretty Brenda Joyce are featured.

This latest picture of Elsa is the story of a glamor girl with millions, who turns a gilded "Red" under the influence of her phony Russian butler and is spanked back into line by a financially embarrassed but brash young man who still thinks America is God's country.

Ball Is Climax

Elsa arranges an Americanism fancy-dress ball with every guest representing his or her favorite figure from American history. The party is full of surprises, but Elsa's choice of an American hero is the biggest surprise of all. Mischa Auer has the top comedy role as Conrad Grisha, the butler. Others in the cast include Ralph Bellamy, Maxie Rosenbloom, Berton Churchill and Franklin Pangborn.

Charlie Chan will be back again Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, on a double bill with Jane Withers' new picture, "Girl from Avenue A." In "Charlie Chan's Murder Cruise," the suave sleuth in the person of Sidney Toler matches wits with a master strangler who ruthlessly slays three unsuspecting victims on board a luxury liner.

Jane Withers' Film

Jane Withers is growing up and so are her picture stories. In her role of a Bowery spitfire Jane is befriended by a handsome Park Avenue playwright, Kent Taylor. Jane has a new boy friend, Rand Brooks. In the free-for-all fight at the climax of the picture Jane rolls up her sleeves and goes to work on one of the Park Avenue debs.

"City for Conquest," starring James Cagney and Ann Sheridan, will start a week's run next Friday. Frank Craven, Donald Crisp, Frank McHugh and Arthur Kennedy have featured roles. The story is of two people in love who are determined to climb out of New York's slums and make a success of their lives.

Bucyrus Outplays Presidents to Score 16 to 6 Upset

Inspired Redmen Hand Harding Its First Defeat in 15 Games As Marion Fails To Show Stuff.

By CHARLES HOSTETLER
Marion Star Sports Editor

MARION HARDING gridmen — favored to win the North Central Ohio conference title, touted to round out the season without a loss, boasting 10 consecutive victories and not a single loss in the last 14 starts—stood by and watched all that fade into sports history as the lightweight Bucyrus Redmen rolled over them to a 16-6 win last night.

An estimated 2,200 spectators stood with them and shared their surprise as Coach Nick Wasylik's inspired proteges shoved them back and forth across Lane street field at Bucyrus. To the Marion fans who loyally followed their favorites and to many a rabid Bucyrus rooter the outcome was a shock, lessened somewhat because they saw it unfold before their very eyes.

For the defeat Marion Harding gridmen can offer no alibis, individually or collectively. They didn't play football. The Redmen did. Perhaps the Presidents forgot to take all press clippings, including your own correspondent's, which told them how good they were, or maybe the Wasylikmen didn't get around to reading them. There can be no explanation for a good big team being beaten by a good little team, and in defense of all newspaper stories, the Massillon Tigers go right on winning regardless of what is said or written about them.

Victory Reserved

It was a clean-cut victory. Statistics show that point clearly. Yardage gained by scrimmage totaled 184 for the Redmen and 81 for the Presidents. Bucyrus had 11 first downs and Marion had seven. The locals fumbled three times and each time Bucyrus recovered. Harding connected on four of 14 passes to gain 54 yards and had two aerials intercepted. Three Bucyrus passes were incomplete.

Bucyrus lost no time in catching the Presidents napping. The Redmen recovered a Harding fumble in the opening minute of play and after a trade of punts was off on a touchdown march. The scoring play sent Don Mitchelson, halfback, around Marion's left side standing up. He traveled 17 yards without being touched by a foe. Jim Gebhardt kicked the point from placement for the 7-0 lead, an advantage that held through the second period.

The Redmen, with a line that averaged only 152 pounds per man, showed plenty of class in making a goal line stand that held Marion out of scoring territory in the second quarter. Another fumble gave Bucyrus possession on Marion's 35 and the opportunity to try for the field goal. What little hope Harding fans held out was lost early in the second half. Bucyrus marched to the Marion 35 and then punted out on the six.

Fumble Behind Goal

A Marion fumble behind the goal line was covered by Ted Heckler to give the Redmen credit for a safety and a 9-0 lead. From the succeeding kick-off they went goalward for another touchdown, James Leuthold skirting right end on the scoring play. Gebhardt added his eighth consecutive point from placement and Marion trailed, 16-0. It was in the closing minute of the game that Marion scored, Leo Belknap carrying the ball on a short plunge and Short's attempted placement going wide of the uprights.

Ream's of copy could be written about last night's game. But fans who have seen Harding in other contests couldn't understand the performance. The Presidents must have suffered some sort of amnesia, forgetting all the football they ever knew. Bucyrus used only straight football, with a little deception, in winning. Marion lacked everything. Linemen couldn't block or tackle and it still is the team which controls the line of scrimmage that wins ball games. Backfield men, when they had holes before them, charged blindly into the line, when stepping to either side would have given them a chance to pick up yardage.

Details of Game

The Bucyrus victory, the first over Marion since 1934, with all the gruesome details, follow:

Marion Receives

The Bucyrus kick-off was received by Roberts, who made a 10-yard return to the Marion 40. Petty and Ferguson picked up a first down at midfield, another line plunge was good for two and a fumble by Roberts gave Bucyrus possession. The Redmen picked up three yards, then Gebhardt hit the line for a first down from a fake punt formation. Bucyrus kicked to Marion's 10, the President's return punt going to midfield. Bucyrus made successive first downs on Marion's 33 and 17. Don Mitchelson got away for the touchdown jaunt, leaving the opposition staring in his wake. Jim Gebhardt kicked the added point from placement. Score: Bucyrus 7. Kemmerly returned the Bucyrus kick-off 10 yards to his own 40, but line plays failed to produce and Marion punted to the Bucyrus 13 as the quarter ended.

Ferguson received a punt on the Bucyrus 45 and returned five yards. Hurst hit the line for two. A Roberts-to-Creasap pass was good for 16 and a first down on the 22. Ferguson went wide to the right and was crowded out on the seven. Four line attempts were stopped a yard short of the double- stripe and Bucyrus punted from behind the goal. Ferguson receiving at midfield. The next trade of punts sent the Presidents reeling back to their own 27-yard line. A fumble gave the Redmen the ball on the 35 and with the first half waning they attempted a field goal. In the closing minutes Belknap got away for a 16-yard dash, but a passing attack bogged down miserably as the half closed with the Prexies still in their own territory.

Second Half

Bucyrus took the half-time kick-off on their 33. Straight football swept them to first downs on the 44, Marion 47, Marion 35 before the Redmen punted out on the six-yard stripe. A fumble behind the goal was covered by Ted Heckler to give Bucyrus credit for a safety. Score: Bucyrus 9. Marion kicked from the 20 and Bucyrus opened another march 43 yards away from the goal. Using laterals, reverses, sweeps, and plunges the Redmen fought their way to a first down on the 13. James Leuthold skirted right end for the touchdown and Jim Gebhardt booted the extra point. Score: Bucyrus 16. Bucyrus kicked off and the Presidents received on their own 37 before the third quarter ended.

Marion took desperate chances. With third and 9 on the 38 an Edington-to-Creasap pass was completed for 14 yards. Edington finally was forced to punt, the ball going out on the Bucyrus 20. A return kick went to midfield and the Redmen intercepted a Marion pass to take possesion on their own 47. They marched to the Marion 26 before being halted and then an attempted punt was partially blocked and recovered by Marion. Marion advanced past midfield to the Bucyrus 44. With but four minutes left a Roberts-to-Creasap pass would have gone for a touchdown, but was called back for a clipping penalty and Marion had a first down on the 28. Ferguson slashed through for 17 yards. Leo Belknap plunged the last yard for Marion's touchdown and Short missed on the attempted placement.

Upper Sandusky Dedicates Football Lighting System, Beats Marysville

Special to The Star

UPPER SANDUSKY, Oct. 19—Upper Sandusky High school dedicated its new lighting system last night with a smashing 21-6 victory over Marysville's High school gridders. Special dedication ceremonies were also held with Charles A. Naus, attorney, as master of ceremonies, before a crowd of some 2,000.

Flag raising was accompanied by the combined music of the American Legion drum corps, and Upper Sandusky and Marysville school bands, playing the "Star Spangled Banner." Later they closed the ceremonies, playing "God Bless America" while the crowd joined in.

Remarks were given by Thomas M. Bowman, president of the board of education, Supt. H. W. Carr of Marysville and Supt. W. O. Moore of here. L. C. Boles, athletic director at Wooster college and former coach there, gave the dedication address.

As far as the game was concerned, Upper Sandusky wasted no time in insuring a victory. After Bill Wood blocked a punt, Upper marched 54 yards and Russell Wolfe scored from 17 yards out. Wolfe, incidentally, scored all three Upper touchdowns and extra points. In the second period after an 85-yard drive Wolfe went over and in the fourth frame he went 28 yards to score after a 55 yard drive and pass interception by Frank Robey.

Doyle Clarridge scored Marysville's lone marker, crashing over from one-yard line after a 60-yard march.

GRIFFITH PONDERS REPLACING HARRIS

Latter's Chance To Go to Cleveland Still in Fire.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19—Should Clark Griffith, president of the Washington Senators, lose his manager, Bucky Harris, to the Cleveland Indians it's an odds-on bet he will begin his search for a new pilot at home.

For the present, though, the Old Fox is saying very little about reports that Cleveland has offered Harris a job to manage the Tribe in 1941.

"Yes," he conceded, "I told the Cleveland club to talk to Bucky if they wanted to, but from what I've heard they haven't done it. No, I don't know why they haven't."

Harris, who is now on a fishing trip off Cape Hatteras, N. C., is reported to have told the Indians that he might accept the Cleveland reins if the contract called for three years and not one.

Griffith, for many seasons, has selected his manager from his own roster. That's how he first got Harris, who was his second baseman.

There are several eligibles around Griffith stadium now. They include Buddy Myer, the veteran second baseman, and Ossie Bluege, Washington's old third sacker. Then there is Griffith's adopted son, Calvin Griffith, manager of the Charlotte, N. C., team.

There have been no loud complaints against Harris' management of the Washington team, which finished seventh this season, but it is not believed that Griffith would try to compete with Cleveland offers.

EAGLES TEAM TO PLAY DELAWARE MOOSE SUNDAY

Highly-Touted Nine To Come Here for Benefit Contest.

Marion's Eagle baseball team will battle the Delaware Moose aggregation Sunday afternoon at Lincoln park in one of the series of games to raise funds to pay for the new park fence.

The game will start probably at 2:30.

Delaware, champion of the Tri-County league, will bring a team batting .374 and boasting a record of 18 victories and four defeats this season. The four losses were all by one-run margins. Pitcher Whelsel won 12 of the games and lost not one. The catcher, Bussey, is a pro with a batting average of .410.

TOM HARMON: Has What It Takes

Tom Harmon, All-America in 1939 and apparently on his way toward a 1940 berth, is an example of the fact that All-America requires more than mere football ability. The Michigan star has plenty of that—but he has the other "musts" too:

All-America honors aren't won on the sidelines. The candidate must be rugged enough to play regularly. Tom seldom requires more than ordinary training room care.

Classroom failure means loss of eligibility, so your football hero must spend his share of time on the books. Intelligence is a big help in game situations, too.

Halfback Harmon credits Blocker Forest Evashevski (Tom affectionately calls him "the big ape") with making his long runs possible: "He's the guy who really does it."

The Gary Calloper has what it takes in ability, too. Give him half a chance and he finds a way around, over, under, or through enemy tacklers for those touchdown jaunts.

FOUR OHIO COLLEGES KEEP RECORDS CLEAN

Case, Kent, Muskingum and Heidelberg Score Victories.

By The Associated Press

Case, Kent State, Muskingum and Heidelberg dominated the Ohio football scene last night by chalking up victories to remain undefeated.

Case took a decision from John Carroll in an intra-city clash in Cleveland, 31 to 12. Left halfback Chuck Minkar of Case skirted end for 36 yards to open the scoring in the first period, other touchdowns came on 45 and 50-yard runs.

It was the Rough Riders' fourth straight win of the year.

Heidelberg scored two second-half touchdowns at Tiffin to beat Kenyon 13 to 0, and stay atop the Ohio conference heap with four straight victories.

Highlight of the scrap was halfback Fenton Wolfe's 50-yard jaunt in the third period for the initial touchdown.

At Findlay, Kent State trounced Findlay college 13 to 0, for its fifth straight win of the year and its second Ohio Conference victory.

GUARDS TO SEE RAMS

CLEVELAND, Oct. 19 — The Cleveland Rams, fighting desperately to keep in the National Football league title chase, tackle the Chicago Cardinals here tomorrow in a do-or-die contest. Approximately 1,500 National Guardsmen will see the game as guests of the Cleveland team. They plan to parade briefly before the kick-off.

Visitors Push Touchdowns Over First and Second Quarters.

Marion St. Mary dropped a 13-6 decision to Carey before proximately 800 spectators at Harding stadium last night. The Sa spotted their guests a 13-0 halftime lead and then saw their half comeback fail a fraction short of wiping out the deficit.

Carey scored on a 39-yard march in the first period, Z jogging 22 yards for the touchdown. The added point was ma from placement by Michaels. In the second period Carey used ground and aerial offense to a good advantage and wound with another touchdown.

Recovery of a fumble by the St. Mary safety man set stage for Carey's second drive. Again it started on the 39. Strahm passed to Jacobs for nine yards and then broke loose for 18 more. Pieracini whipped through the line for 11 and Michaels plunged the last yard for the score.

It was a fighting Irish team that came on the field for the second half. They rolled up first downs in rapid order and were on their way to pay territory in the second period. They were on the Carey eight as the quarter closed and in the opening minutes of the final Ted Schuler broke through for the touchdown.

Ill Luck

Ill luck dogged the Saints in the closing minutes when they were rapping on the gates for another score. They had waded to the one yard stripe and were stopped on downs. A Carey punt from behind the goal was blocked and recovered on the three-yard marker, but the game-ending gun barked and brought the curtain down on a scoring opportunity that might have earned them a tie.

The game, in more complete detail, follows:

St. Mary kicked-off and Carey made a 10-yard return to its own 30. Pieracini hit right tackle for eight. An offside penalty gave Carey first down. McGinnis threw Pieracini for a 10-yard loss. A trade of punts permitted Carey to gain 10 yards. The visitors picked up a first down but a holding penalty stopped their drive and punt went to the Saints' 24. Here an Irish fumble gave Carey session, but after an incomp pass, the situation was reve when St. Mary recovered a f ble. A punt went out on the 39 and Carey launched its touchdown drive. CONN BEATS M'COY, MOVES NEARER LOUIS

Victor Unbeaten So Far in Heavyweight Campaign.

By The Associated Press

BOSTON, Oct. 19—Billy Conn, world's light heavyweight champion, drew a step nearer today to a bout with Joe Louis, the heavyweight titlist.

The handsome Pittsburgh youth moved up the notch by scoring a decisive win last night over rugged Al McCoy of Boston, who has proved a stumbling block to more than one other aspirant to high fistic honors.

Conn, undefeated since he started his campaign in the heavyweight ranks, scaled 172¾ to McCoy's 181½, but was far stronger at the end of the 10-round nontitle bout than his heavier foe.

He shook McCoy frequently with both hands in the ninth and tenth rounds, obviously striving for the knockout that never came.

The gross gate for the show, which opened Boston's indoor season, was announced as $21,300, one of the largest here in recent years. The attendance was 15,523.
